BARKER-O'CONNOR FIGHT.

It was Called off at the Sitting of the Commission Monday.

THE END CAME VERY SUDDENLY

Attorneys for Contestants Said They Had No Evidence to Present in Substantiation of the Charges of Fraud Made.

DECREE FORMULATED BY COURT

JOHNSTOWN, January 1.—The Barker-O'Conner contest for the judgeship of Cambria county has been declared off. The contest court met Tuesday morning at Ebensburg, at which time the attorneys for Mr. O'Connor stated that they had not been able to obtain sufficient evidence to establish fraud in the petition of Mr. Barker asking for a contest. That rule was squashed and the answer of Mr. O'Connor to the notice of contest was filed. It was a voluminious document of twenty-eight type written pages. At this point was sprung the sensation of calling off the fight. The court asked the attorneys of the contestant. Judge Barker, if they had any evidence to present to substantiate their charges that Mr. O'Connor was elected by fraud. They answered that they had not. The court thereupon stated that while a contestant having once started a contest could not withdraw, if no testimony was forthcoming, it fell for lack of evidence.

The court then formulated a decree to the effect that no evidence to the contrary having been produced, they found Francis J. O'Connor had been legally elected Judge of Cambria county, and the contest was over. The full decree follows :

And now, December 31, 1901, this matter being before the court on petition and answer, and the petitioners declining to present any testimony in support of the allegation of the petition, the court, therefore certifies that Francis J. O'Connor, having received the greater number of legal votes for the office of president judge of the Forty-seventh judicial district at the general election held on the 5th day of November, 1901, is entitled to the office, and the protbonotary is hereby directed to enter of record this decision and decree and transmit a certified copy thereof within five days to the secretary of the commonwealth.

Severe Blow to British Arms.

LONDON, Jan. 1.—It is now possible to sum up the full extent of the blow which General De Wet inflicted on the British at Tweefontein Christmas morning.

The corrected lists of British casualties show 61 killed, 54 wounded and 254 prisoners. This means that Colonel Firman's column was wiped out, as the four companies of yeomanry of which it was composed would not in any event have comprised more than 400 men, and the probability is that each company was slightly below its full strength.

The newspapers are calling Tweefontein another Majuba and certainly its terrible results bring back very vividly the disaster to Sir George Colley's force in February of 1881. At Tweefontein, as at Majuba, the British were encamped upon a hill with one precipitous side, the other being a gentle slope, and in each case the Boers succeeded in climbing the side that was supposed to be impregnable.

At Majuba there was a panic and the British defeat was sufficient to end the war, but at Tweefontein the British soldiers displayed deeds of gallantry and the battle itself was little more than an incident in the long drawn out campaign.

De Wet's tactics are likewise compared with Wolfe's at Quebec, and the conclusion is arrived at that a position of apparently great natural strength may also be in itself a cause of disaster.

Royal Honors to a Pennsylvanian.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 1.—Royal honors will be paid to the body of Dr. Allanro Read, the American dentist who had lived here since 1860, and who died Monday night.

Dr. Read was a native of Pennsylvania and occupied much the same position here as the late Dr. Thomas W. Evans, of Philadelphia, did in Paris. He was patronized by the royal family of Denmark, the royal family of Sweden, the Dowager Empress of Russia, and Queen Alexandra and enjoyed the friendship of members of various royal families.

The deceased declined to accept a title and other honors, and retained his American citizenship. Wreaths from the royal family of Denmark will be deposited on Dr. Read's coffin on the day of the funeral.

THE NEW YEAR'S BALL.

The Most Successful Event Ever Held by the Logan Fire Company.

The 32nd annual ball of the Logan Steam Fire Engine Company was held in the armory of Co. B, New Year's eve and proved to be one of the most pleasant and successful events of the kind ever held by this popular fire company.

There was an immense attendance and everything passed off very smoothly the best order being maintained. The music for the occasion was furnished by Smith's orchestra.

The grand march took place at 9 o'clock and was led by Samuel Ryan and J. Mitch Cunningham. During the evening excellent specialties were introduced as follows : A trombone solo by Mrs. Charles Rote; tight rope walking by Louie Hill and a funny stunt in black face comedy by the well known minstrel artists Meek and Harris. Dancing was kept up until the wee 'sma' hours.

The committee in charge were Messrs. James L. Seibert, George Cunningham, Samuel Morrison and Allen Weight.

Rev. G. P. Sarvis Heard From.

Rev. G. P. Sarvis, the well known and popular Methodist minister who was formerly pastor of the church at Pleasant Gap but who is now located at Thompsontown, Pa., on hearing that the Methodist Conference was to be held in this place wrote to a friend here in part as follows: "I am so glad conference will be held in Bellefonte for I would sooner go there than any place I know of, among my friends. We are all well and getting along the best we can. We are having good meetings but not many conversions, but still God is blessing my labors in many ways for this I am so thankful. Oh I am happy on my way. Nothing to fear for God is near."

We publish the above letter owing to the fact that Rev. Sarvis has a host of friends in this vicinity who will all be glad to hear a word from him, and who will welcome him to Bellefonte at conference time with open arms.

Filipinos Show Their Hatred for the Friars.

MANILA, Jan. 1.—Memorial services and a procession were held here yesterday in honor of Jose Rizah, the Filipino leader. The services were celebrated on the Luneta, where Rizal was executed by the Spaniards Dec. 30, 1896. The procession called at the town hall and Acting Governor Wright addressed a few words to those who took part in it.

The manifestation was chiefly remarkable for the intense hatred displayed toward the friars. When passing the Augustine Monastery the processionists cried "Your power is dead." "Go home." "We don't want you here." "The blood of the martyred Rizal is avenged." "We have witnessed your humiliation," and other such words.

Smallpox in Mining Town.

A dispatch from Altoona, under date of yesterday, states that news from Figart, a mining town along the Pennsylvania and Northwestern railway, about 15 miles from Altoona, brings to light the fact that there are 20 cases of smallpox in the village. A representative of the State Board of Health was taken to the scene this afternoon on a special train from Bellwood, the southern terminus of the road, and will take charge of affairs until the disease is either stamped out or the local authorities are able to cope with it.

Burglarized and Burned.

Thieves entered the factory of the Jersey Shore manufacturing company at an early hour Sunday morning, and after securing what money they could they set fire to the place. The thieves entered the office of the factory by cutting out a pane of glass in the front door. They blew open the door of the safe and after removing $20 and a number of checks they started a fire among a lot of unmanufactured goods. The building was soon in flames, and the loss is placed at $25 000. The products of the company were men's and boys' clothing.

Kick on the Heel Fatal.

Vesta Wagner, the little daughter of O. M. Wagner, of Lewisville, Potter county, died Saturday as the result of being kicked on the heel by a boy schoolmate four weeks ago. The injury caused the bone to become diseased and amputation was decided upon, but before the operation could be performed the girl died.

—Arthur Plummer of Altoona who has been employed by the Bell Telephone Company in Bellefonte has been sent to Easton. He has made a great many friends while in our town who will feel very sorry to know of his going away, but who will no doubt wish him unbounded success in his new territory.

NOW STEADILY FALLING!

Reports from the State as to Condition of the Many Streams.

WERE HIGH ENOUGH, HOWEVER

GREAT DANGER AT SAFE HARBOR

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 31.—Reports from all parts of Eastern Pennsylvania last night show that the rivers and creeks, which became greatly swollen as a result of Saturday night and Sunday's continuous rain, are steadily falling. There is one exception, however, the lower part of the Susquehanna river being reported to be still rising and close to the danger mark.

Although considerable damage was done the losses will not be great, most of the flooded areas being low lands along the upper Schuylkill, Lehigh and Susquehanna rivers. In the anthracite coal district a few of the mines were flooded, causing a suspension of work for the day. Along the lower Susquehanna there is apprehensionthat damage will result from ice gorges. The water is said to be rising six inches an hour in that vicinity.

The Schuylkill river in this city rose 18 feet above normal, which rise has been passed only once in 32 years. Manayunk, one of the mill districts, situated along the Schuylkill in the northwestern part of the city, suffered most from the flood. Every mill along the river was forced to suspend operations, throwing out of work for the day about 3,000 persons.

The river drives through Fairmount park and several sections of the railroad tracks on both sides of the river between the park and the mouth of the Schuylkill were under water for a short time during yesterday.

It was feared that the Baltimore and Ohio station, on the east side of the river Chestnut street, would be flooded, but just as the water got within a few feet of doing harm the water began to recede and all danger was over.

The rain, which began falling here at 7 o'clock Saturday night, ceased at 8 o'clock Monday morning and in that time the precipitation amounted to 3.26 inches.

LANCASTER, Dec. 31.—The Susquehanna river is still rising. The most dangerous point appears to be at Safe Harbor, where the Conestoga empties. Here the water continues to rise at the rate of six inches an hour. The water now covers the Port Deposit and Columbia railroad tracks and the public roads. The ice on the river has not yet broken and if it does it is feared a great gorge will result at Star Rock, just above Safe Harbor. People living at the latter place close to the river have abandoned their homes and taken to the high ground. The river is not yet bank full at Columbia or Marietta, but is steadily rising.

SHAMOKIN, Dec. 31.—Rain which fell almost continuously the past forty hours flooded a number of collieries in this region. Water rose so high in the Henry Clay shaft that all the mules were hoisted to the surface and the operation closed down for an indefinite period. One thousand employes were rendered idle. The plant is owned by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company.

ROANOKE, Va., Dec. 31.—Railroad traffic in Southern Virginia has been interfered with in the past 24 hours owing to the snow and rain during the last two weeks. Many washouts are reported in the Norfolk and Western line, the Roanoke and Southern and the Shenandoah Valleys.

John Wright lost his life in this county Sunday night while attempting to cross a swollen stream on a horse.

A heavy fall of sleet and snow at Christiansburg yesterday has prostrated the telegraph and telephone lines in that vicinity.

A telegram from Radford last night says New river has been flooded again for the fifth time this year. The water rose 20 feet and spread over the adjacent country, practically submerging trees, houses and railway tracks.

Contract for Laying Pipe.

James P. Herdic, of Williamsport, has been awarded the contract for laying the water pipe from Jersey Shore to Oak Grove. The system will be 10,000 feet long and the pipe will be twelve inches in diameter.

A CHRISTMAS SONG SERVICE.

A Interesting Musical Event Which Occurred in the Presbyterian Church Sunday Evening.

A large congregation assembled in the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening to hear the Christmas Song Service, the notice of which appeared in these columns on Saturday.

The program was prepared by Mrs. S. E. Bonbright, church organist, and the choir, under her direction, had been preparing for the event for sometime, and as a result everything passed off in a highly satisfactory manner.

Mrs. Bonbright is an accomplished musician, as was evinced by her playing Sunday night and under her manipulation the grand old organ never produced finer music.

The singing was principally in chorus, the exceptions being a solo by Miss Kate Brisbin, who surprised every one with the sweet melody and range of her voice, and she was the recipient of many congratulations.

Mr. H. Brown in a bass solo showed great cultivation, and he never appeared to better advantage, his enunciation being particularly fine.

Miss Lilian Walker also sang a solo and charmed all with the extreme sweetness of her tone, and every one who took part acquitted themselves most creditably.

Dr. Laurie, pastor of the church, made a few remarks pertinent to the occasion.

The service was pronounced by all who heard it as being among the finest ever given in that church, and Mrs. Bonbright deserves great credit for having furnished such a delightful musical treat.

A Native of Centre County Dies at Altoona.

At 5:30 o'clock Saturday morning Mrs. Mary Breon, wife of the late Captain Jacob Breon, died at her home, 425 Third avenue, Altoona, of diseases incident to old age. She had been ailing for about a month. The deceased was born at Potter's Mills, Centre county, on March 29, 1831, and was aged 70 years, 8 months and 29 days. She was married to Captain Jacob Breon on November 29, 1849, and with him moved to Altoona twenty years ago. During her residence there she won many friends by her kind and loving disposition and was esteemed by all who knew her. She was a member of the Altoona Fifth Avenue Methodist church. Her husband preceded her to the grave last April and she is survived by these children: William H. and George E. Breon, Mrs. Simon Small and Mrs. H. C. Smith, all of Altoona. The funeral took place Monday afternoon, services were conducted at the house at 2:30 o'clock by Rev. George Leidy. Interment was made in Fairview cemetery.

A RECORD BREAKER.

The Year Just Closing the Most Commercially Prosperous

AND EXPANSION STILL CONTINUES

Pre Eminence of the Past Twelve Months the More Notable When Some of the Great Drawbacks are Taken Into Consideration.

THE OUTLOOK FOR THE FUTURE

NEW YORK, December 28.—The annual review of American trade, finance and industry prepared by Bradstreet's and given publicity yesterday, declared 1901 to be a record breaker among the five successive years of commercial expansion enjoyed by the United States. Its pre-eminence, the review stated, was all the more notable because it suffered from a combination of happenings that in a normal year would have proved depressing if not disastrous. Enumerated in the latter were the machinists' and steel strikes, the stock panic of May, the failure of several imprudently managed combinations, the efforts of some combinations, including that in copper, to fix prices, the shortage in corn, cotton and oats, and the assassination of President McKinley. Summarizing the general situation the review said :

"Briefly summarized, the year has seen transacted an aggregate of general business, as reflected in bank clearings far in excess of any preceding period; has witnessed stock speculation rampant beyond the dreams of old time brokers, checked and curtailed by one of the sharpest stock panics in history, and yet, with a remarkable minimum of disturbance of general financial operations, has watched general industry and production grow steadily until new and larger figures were needed to express the outputs of coal and ore and iron and steel and leather and lumber and a multitude of other branches; has seen the freight transportation facilities of the country, strained to the breaking point, prove insufficient to handle the volume of business offered, and finally has witnessed a volume of holiday business passing all previous bounds both of quantity and quality, all of which are evidences of the vastly increased purchasing power of the general public of late years.

The review stated that the activity in transportation was unprecedented. The outlook was treated in conclusion as follow :

"Many elements of strength and some of the opposite character present themselves to view. The quietness of export trade checked by relatively higher prices here and lack of new demand abroad particularly in Germany, which country is reported selling iron and steel products below cost, are obstacles to increased shipments by this country. On the other hand, England trades advices are rather better, and the predicted early suspension of hostilities in South Africa and the resumption of large gold shipments from that section are favorable features presenting themselves. Europe must buy our wheat and cotton freely, but as long as domestic activity in trade, particularly iron and steel, continues, the need of a foreign outlet is not regarded as pressing. If only a portion of the high hopes indulged in as a result of the recent conferences of capital and labor materialize, industrial peace, and through this sustained commercial good feeling and prosperity will have been powerfully furthered."

A Great Conference of Lutherans.

The Lutherans of Pennsylvania will hold a great missionary conference in the city of Philadelphia, at St. Mark's church, Thirteenth and Spring Garden streets, January 6 to 8, 1902. This promises to be one of the largest gatherings of Lutherans, as scores of laymen and women from about six hundred parishes in the state will join their pastors to attend this convention.

An Egg Story.

On December 26, a hen owned by E. M. Dorman, of Beech Creek, laid an egg which was eight by six inches. The hen was hatched on March 26, and began laying November 26. The theory produced for the enormous size is, that the hen refused to work on Christmas, it being a legal holiday, and not wishing to offend its owner laid a three yolked egg on the day after Christmas.

SHE FOOLED HIM AGAIN.

And Now He Says That She Can Go.

Charles W. Ingram, of Brownesville, Ohio, who recently was married to Miss Annie Tipton, through an advertisement in a newspaper, and whose wife left him at Pittsburg a short time after the wedding ceremony took place, has been having a novel and varied experience.

After spending much time and money himself in trying to locate her, and failing, he came to Bellefonte and before Justice Kelchline had papers made out charging her with desertion. These documents were placed in the hands of Joseph Rightnour, the county detective, who went to Pittsburg and found the missing bride.

She was brought to Howard, where Ingram was in waiting for her. When he saw her he was so delighted to think that she had returned, and believing that she would not again leave him, he withdrew the suit.

It was then planned that they should all go to the home of the bride's parents, which is located only a short distance from Howard. Mr. Tipton, father of the bride, together with Ingram, started ahead, and after they had taken their departure the bride went to a livery, secured a conveyance and was driven to another station along the Bald Eagle railroad, where she intercepted the train east and left again for parts unknown.

The husband was very much surprised to find that she had played him the slip again and said that he would now give up the chase.

She Outwitted a Would-be Santa.

When Mrs. Harry Link, of Fostoria, near Tyrone, put the babies to bed Christmas eve, she hung up and filled the stockings, and then sat down before the fireplace. There was a knock at the door and in strode a man. He was attired as Santa Claus, and he smiled pleasantly. But Mrs. Link's surprise was turned to alarm when he gruffly demanded money. Mrs. Link at first insisted she had none, but, alarmed by the man's threats, she told him to search in the next room. Ripping open a mattress she took out several hundred dollars recently received from the pension department and thrust it into a stocking hanging from the mantel, placing a little candy on top. Then Mrs. Link hurried to a neighbor's. Upon her return she found the burglar had fled without discovering the hiding place of the money.

Censured Officials and Employes.

The coroner's jury, after hearing the evidence of many witnesses on the giving way of the Lycoming Creek bridge at Williamsport, rendered a verdict that the deaths of the three men were caused through the neglect of the officials and employes of the Pennsylvania railroad, on duty at that time, in not preventing said oyster train from proceeding at a time when it was known to said officials that the bridge was in a dangerous condition for any train to pass over."

Of the three men who were drowned, only one has been found.

Tumbled Over the Embankment.

While driving on the old Coudersport pike, north of Jersey Shore, the other night, John Coleman and John Meixell, the latter of Montgomery, a business partner of the Williamsport lumberman, were thrown from their rig to the ground just as the team and wagon went down a steep bank and lodged against a tree 100 feet below. With the aid of a man familiar with the place, the horses were extricated, though with some difficulty. Strangely enough but little damage resulted.

Buried in the Same Grave.

At Belieview, Jefferson county, Wednesday, Mrs. John Baxter and Mrs. Marion Covert, of near Brookville, sisters, were buried in the same grave. Mrs. Baxter died of apoplexy Monday night. Mrs. Covert, who had been ill for some time, died a few moments later, and the messengers bearing the sad news met each other on the way to the stricken homes.

Big Industry for DuBois.

The Rochester and Pittsburg Coal and Iron company will begin in a short time clearing a site in DuBois for a large pig iron mill. Eighty acres of ground have been purchased. A nail mill, foundry, machine shops and boiler works will also be built.

Will Go to Burmah, India.

George D. Snyder, of Williamsport, has tendered his resignation as city engineer. He will start for Burmah, India, where he will work on the new oil fields for Jacobs & Davis. Mr. Snyder is also captain of Company D, Twelfth regiment.

You should know that Foley's Honey and Tar is absolutely the best for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Dealers are authorized to guarantee it to give satisfaction. C. M. Parrish.

—The concert given in the Court House Wednesday evening by Mr. Earnest Gamble, the famous barytone, assisted by Miss Grace Jenkins, the violinist, was a rare treat and one of the finest performance of the kind ever given in Bellefonte. Both are artists of the first magnitude.

—Frank Treadwell, Bennett, Ia., was troubled with kidney diseases for two years. He writes: "I had taken several kinds of kidney remedies, but with little benefit. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and a one dollar bottle cured me. C. M. Parrish.

—Miss Mary Gitt, who visits quite frequently the family of Rev. C. T. Aikens, at Pine Grove Mills, met with quite a serious accident there Saturday evening. She is an elderly maiden lady and in some manner she fell breaking her left thigh. Her home is in York county but she is quite well known here. She is the grand-daughter of James Bishop, after whom Bishop street, Bellefonte, was named.

—N. Jackson, Danville, Ill, writes: "My daughter had a severe attack of la grippe and a terrible cough settled on her lungs. We tried a great many remedies without giving relief. She tried Foley's Honey and Tar which cured her. She has never been troubled with cough since." C. M. Parrish.

—Capt. W. H. Fry, the well known veterinary surgeon of Pine Grove Mills, met with quite a serious accident last Saturday evening. The injury was quite painful but the Captain is getting along nicely and will soon be about again.

—W. L. Yancy, Paduch, Ky., writes: "I had a severe case of kidney diseases and three of the best physicians in southern Kentucky treated me without success. I was induced to try Foley's Kidney Cure. The first bottle gave immediate relief and three cured me permanently. I gladly recommend this wonderful remedy." Take no substitute C. M. Parrish.

—The holiday season trade was altogether satifactory. Large quantities of goods were disposed of by our local merchants, at fair prices, and with benefit to their own interests and those of their customers. The holiday trade was above what it is ordinarily. It reached decidedly extraordinary proportions and all branches of the merchandise business, catering to those buying goods for the holidays, felt the effects of the great demand from the purchasers.

—Ghosts would frighten many people who are not afraid of germs, Yet the germ is a real danger. If this microscopic animalism could be magnified to a size in proportion to its deadliness it would show like a giant python, or fire-breathing dragon. The one fact to remember is that the germ is powerless to harm the body when the blood is pure. It is far easier to keep the germ out than to drive it out after it obtains a hold in the system. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the most powerful and perfect of blood purifying medicines. It increases the quantity as well as the quality of the blood, and enables the body to resist disease, or to throw it off if disease has obtained a footing in some weak organ. Wherever the digestion is impaired, the nutrition of the body is diminished, for the blood is made from the food which is eaten, and half digested food cannot supply the body with blood in quantity and quality adequate to its needs. For this condition there is no remedy equal to "Golden Medical Discovery." It cures ninety-eight out of every hundred persons who give it a fair trial. When there is constipation Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets will promptly relieve and permanently cure.

Hood—Apt.

On Christmas eve, at 6:30, Miss Clara Apt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Apt, and Mr. Homer Hood, of Lewisburg, were united in marriage at the parsonage of the Evangelical church by Rev. W. H. Brown. Only a few friends and relatives were present. Mr. Hood is employed by Mr. Lyon, the butcher, and is quite well known in Bellefonte. This paper wishes them unbounded success through life.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional disease.

It originates in a scrofulous condition of the blood and depends on that condition.

It often causes headache and dizziness, impairs the taste, smell and hearing, affects the vocal organs and disturbs the stomach.

It is always radically and permanently cured by the blood-purifying, alterative and tonic action of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

This great medicine has wrought the most wonderful cures of all diseases depending on scrofula or the scrofulous habit.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best cathartic.

METHODIST CONFERENCE.

Will Be Held in Bellefonte March 26th 1902.

The Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held in Bellefonte beginning March 26th. This has been fully decided upon. It was to have been held at Shamokin but owing to the prevalence of small pox there it was deemed inadvisable to hold it at that place. Owing to this fact it was decided by the Presiding Elders of the Conference to receive invitations from different towns in the Conference.

On Sunday the official board of the Bellefonte Methodist church decided unanimously to invite the conference to come here. Word was accordingly sent to the Presiding Elders and a telegram was received here Monday accepting the invitation.

This Conference promises to be a very interesting gathering. It will be held in the Bellefonte Methodist church and will be presided over by Bishop John M. Walden, of Cincinnatti. At this meeting the case of Dr. Silas C. Swallow who has been denied the privileges of the church will come up for trial.

It is quite an undertaking for Bellefonte to assume the responsibility of entertaining the Conference at this late date, but we are equal to the emergency. The Conference was in a predicament and Bellefonte has come nobly to the rescue. A successful outcome is assured.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate, If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles. C. M. Parrish.

Happily Wedded.

A most delightful social event occurred at the home of Mrs. Mary E. Leathers, in Howard, at 5 o'clock on Thursday evening, Dec. 19, when Martha Mills Leathers and Charles N. Yearick, of Jacksonville, were united in marriage by the bride's pastor, the Rev. G. F. Boggs. Mendelssohn's wedding march was efficiently rendered by Howard B. Neff, to the music of which the happy couple entered the spacious parlor where a large company of friends were assembled. They were preceded by Miss Rosa Kling and Earl Yearick, of Walker, and Miss Kathryn Cummings, of Emporium. After the ceremony supper was served, after which the newly wedded couple departed on the 8:46 train for Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

The bride is one of the most popular young women in Howard. An efficient worker in church and Sunday school, and among the foremost in all works of charity. She leaves a place in the home, in the church and in the community that will be difficult to fill. Mr. Yearick is a progressive and successful young business man of Walker. A multitude of friends wish them happiness and success on life's voyage.—Howard Hustler.

The pleasant country home of Hon. John T. McCormick, near Pine Hall, was the scene of a very pretty nuptial event Tuesday, Dec. 24, at high noon. It was the occasion of the giving in marriage of Mr. McCormick's youngest daughter, Mary, to Frank Krumrine, son of Fred Krumrine of State College.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. T. Aiken's, the Lutheran minister at Pine Grove Mills, in the presence of only the immediate families of the contracting parties.

Immediately after the ceremony an elegant wedding dinner was served to all present.

Coughs, Colds and Constipation.

Few people realize when taking cough medicines other than Foley's Honey and Tar, that they contain opiates which are constipating besides being unsafe, particularly for children. Foley's Honey and Tar contains no opiates, is safe and sure and will not constipate. For Sale by C. M. Parrish.

THE LOGAN SMOKER.

Annual Yule-Tide Festivities of Popular Fire Laddies.

The annual Yule-Tide smoker of the Logan Steam Fire Engine company was held in their building on Howard street Christmas evening and proved a most happy and successful event. Over one hundred and fifty guests took advantage of the far-famed hospitality of the Logan boys and were present to grace the occasion. Judges, doctors, politicians, lawyers, councilmen, county officials, editors, business men and brother firemen from the Undine company were in the crowd and right royally were they entertained.

The "smoker," or perhaps banquet would be a better name, began at nine o'clock and lasted several hours. All the good things imaginable were there, fixed up in a manner that reflected great credit on Caterer J. Mitch Cunningham and his assistants.

The intellectual part of the program was also fine. Burgess Blanchard was toastmaster and an excellent one he made, too, introducing the speakers in a most graceful manner. Addresses were made by Hon. John G. Love, Capt. H. S. Taylor, E. R. Chambers, President Pat Garrity of the Undine company, Hon. James Schofield, George R. Meek, Dr. M. J. Locke, T. H. Harter and others.

William Doll also favored the guests with an Irish song that brought down the house.

The committee in charge of the affair were Messrs. J. Mitch Cunningham, Geo. Kniesly, Ben Tate, Homer Barnes, Ed Shrom, Robert Montgomery, Samuel Morrison, John Knisely and R. S. Brouse.

Father Nevin Fisher Elected For Life.

Rev. Nevin F. Fisher, who was born at Boalsburg, this county, in 1856, has just been appointed by Archbishop Ryan, to the charge of St. John's Roman Catholic church, on Thirteenth St. below Market, in Philadelphia. The position is for life. Being irremovable it was only attained through a competitive examination in which six candidates for the honor contested.

At the age of 16 he began to study for the Episcopal ministry, but shortly before the time set for his ordination he decided to embrace the Catholic faith. He studied at the theological seminary at Overbrook for three years and in 1882 was sent to the American college in Rome to complete his theological course. In 1883 he received minor orders; in 1885, deaconship, and in 1886 was ordained to the priesthood by Cardinal Parichi at St John Tateran's. Father Fisher celebrated his first mass in the Borghese chapel of Santa Maria Majiore.

On his return to this country in August, 1886, Father Fisher was appointed professor in St. Charles' theological seminary, Overbrook, where he remained until 1890 when he was made inspector of parochial schools. The same year he was placed in charge of the Catholic High school of Philadelphia. He is a brother of Dr. P. S. Fisher, the well known physician of Zion.

LOST IN A CAVE.

From the Houtzdale Citizen.

Two prominent citizens of Houtzdale had an experience the other day that they won't forget for some time. As they both are enthusiastic archæologists they took a walk to the Indian's cave, situated on the side of the Moshannon creek, not far from the village of Ginter, for the purpose of collecting some fossils, as that cave is reported to contain some rare specimens. As men bent on such undertakings they came supplied with torches and other paraphernalia suitable for such an expedition that they required but few preliminaries before exploring the cave. As they advanced along its intricate windings they were surprised to hear the sound of their voices reach way through hollow chambers and they were struck with awe at the silent grandeur that every moment revealed to their astonished view. Blinded by zeal in the persuit of their favorite gems, they rushed forward thoughtless of the dangers and difficulties that might beset them on their return journey. On one side they could see forests of giant oaks petrified in to stone and clinging to the branches legions of monkeys who looked down at their visitors with a wierd and awful grin. On the other were herds of buffaloes lying as if resting after a stampede, and a lone Indian from beyond stood as if shooting his arrow at the sleeping herd. Large snakes lay across their path whose names are only known to geologists; huge birds that for ages have become extinct upon the earth were crouched against the rocks apparently paralyzed at some monster that seemed about to swallow them. On the branches of a tree sat numerous birds that away in the bygone ages delighted with their songs the children of the forest, but now sat mute under the unconscious gaze of the petrified dwellers of the cave. Further on they came to what must have been a lover's bower, where lovers in the language of flowers once wooed and won each other's heart; here were lilies of every variety that would almost force the imagination to feel their fragant perfume. The beautiful arbutus with their petals proudly erect upon their stems as if soliciting the admiration of lovers of the sublime and beautiful, swans that once glided gently over the silvery lake sat at the waters edge gazing at a lone dove perched at a distance, who in past ages had cooed its last song for its dead lover. Amid such scenes as these it was but natural that men would forget their mission. Rejoicing at their lucky find one began to congratulate himself on the rich collection of curios he would be able to send to the museum of his native city of "Brotherly Love" The other anticipated the pleasure he would have in seeing the temperance hall decorated from floor to ceiling with the choicest specimens gathered from the cave, where they could be object lessons to his young cadets on the preservation qualities of pure water. With their minds filled with such thoughts as these they began to retrace their steps only to find themselves in a labyrinth of caverns leading in every direction, sometimes walking through ferns and grass that crumbled like brittle glass beneath their feet; at other times tripping o'er the tail of a viper or falling into the jaws of an alligator. To swing themselves over a gapping chasm they were forced to take hold of the tail of a monkey that was perched upon a branch above their heads. Tired and almost in despair of ever reaching the outer world they sat down to rest, one on the back of a crouching lion, the other upon a large serpent that was coiled upon the ground, where they fell asleep. They were awakened by the fast footsteps of Isaac Goss, who was coming in search of a stray mule, and who guided them safely to the mouth of the cave.

To Limit Wheat Crops.

Many Pennsylvania farmers have received circulars asking their co operation in a Kansas scheme to limit the production of wheat by curtailing the area devoted to this crop. The proposition is that each farmer entering into the scheme shall only sow enough wheat in 1902 for his seed, and let the world at large obtain its supply as best it can.

The indications are that this plan like many similar ones will fail to obtain the sanction of the class which it is proposed to benefit, for farmers seem disposed to advise the course to their neighbors, but to increase their own wheat area. At present many farmers in this state are feeding wheat to stock. Careful experiments prove that if fed to poultry this way of disposing of the crop is more profitable than a sale at present prices.

A Former Bellefonte Boy Married.

A quiet, but very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday evening Dec. 24, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Myers of Brinton Pa. It was the marrirge of their daughter, Miss Mary L., to George P. Gault, formerly of Bellefonte but now of Wilkinsburg, Pa. The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock and was performed by Rev. A. L. Funk of that place.

George Gault was a resident of Bellefonte until about a year ago he went to Wilkinsburg where he has an excellent position. He is an industrious young man and bound to get along. They will reside in Wilkinsburg.

KING'S EVIL.

How Ignorance and Superstition go Hand in Hand.

A curious sight might have been seen in England a couple of centuries ago. At Whitehall or some other royal residence a little group of people would shrinkingly await the coming of the king, in order to be "touched for the evil." The specific "evil" was scrofula, and it was the popular belief that scrofula could be cured by the royal touch. Hence the common name for scrofula was King's Evil.

Nowadays we know that scrofula is a disease of the blood and that even were there magic in a kingly touch, no external treatment could cure scrofula. The medicine which cures scrofula must deal with the blood. It must be able to eradicate and eliminate the poisons which corrupt the blood and breed and feed disease. When the blood is cleansed, the pimples, blotches, boils and other eruptions disappear, ulcers and sores are healed and the flesh becomes sound and healthy.

THE RIGHT WAY

to cleanse the blood from scrofula is to choose that remedy which has cured thousands of people who suffered from scrofula in its most grevious forms.

"I am using a good many of your medicines in my practice," writes Dr. Joseph Fike, of Lost Springs, Marion Co., Kansas. "Ten years ago there was an emigration from Rusland to this country and there was a lady in the company who was badly affected with that dreadful disease, scrofula. Her mouth and throat were in an awful condition, and there were lumps on the outside, below the jaws, the size of a hen's egg. Other doctors had been called and they said it was a fatal case. I felt confident that none of my remedies would benefit her any. It came to my mind that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was recommended for such cases, so I went to the drug store and bought one bottle and gave it to her to use as directed. Five bottles cured her and she is well to-day. She is married now and has three healthy children."

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery judged solely by the cures it has effected is without doubt the most powerful and most perfect blood purifying medicine of the century. It is a radical remedy. It goes to the root of the disease. Some preparations containing mineral poisons such as mercury are offered as cures for scrofula. These medicines only suppress the symptoms of disease for a while and give the skin a look of clearness, but after a time the suppressed disease like a smothered fire breaks out with a new violence.

It is the uniform testimony of those who have been cured of scrofulous diseases by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery," that the cure is permanent. In many instances the testimonial to the cure has not been offered until the lapse of several years proved how thoroughly and lastingly the medicine had done its work.

No class of people are more grateful for the blood purifying power of the "Discovery" than women whose faces have been marked and marred by pimples and other eruptions. The smooth skin and clear complexion which come back when "Golden Medical Discovery" has swept the blood clean of its corrupting poisons, are a source of unfeigned delight to those who for years have had their beauty marred by some form of eruptive disease. Beauty begins in the blood, and the first step to beauty is to cleanse the blood of the corrupting impurities which weaken the body and befoul the flesh.

THE SCOURGE OF CIVILIZATION.

From half civilized or unsanitary countries come the plagues which decimate the teeming populations of the Orient. Sanitary science and medical skill have banished the plagues from among ourselves, but civilization has its own scourge in that form of scrofula which attacks the lungs and is popularly known as consumption.

Plagues are not persistent. They appear and disappear again for years. Scrofula of the lungs or consumption is a persistent disease. Every day of every year it gathers in its victims; one-sixth of all deaths from disease being attributed to consumption. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures scrofula wherever it finds it. It eliminates the scrofulous poison from the blood and so the organs which are fed by blood are relieved from the scrofulous poisons which destroy them. Obstinate, deep-seated coughs, bronchitis, bleeding of the lungs and similar dangerous forms of disease are perfectly and permanently cured by "Golden Medical Discovery."

"Dr. Pierce's medicine has not only benefited me greatly but it has done wonders for my two sons," writes Mrs. M. Hartrick, of Demster, Oswego Co., N. Y. "Both had scrofula. I have lost two daughters in less than five years with consumption and scrofula. My eldest son was taken two or three years ago with hemorrhage from the lungs. It troubled him for over a year. He took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and has not had a hemorrhage in over a year. My younger son had scrofulous sores on his neck; had two lanced, but has not had any since he commenced to take your medicine."

ABSOLUTELY RELIABLE.

"Golden Medical Discovery" can be absolutely relied on as a safe and sure medicine for diseases caused by a scrofulous condition of the blood. It cures disease of skin and scalp, eczema, saltrheum, tetter, scrofulous sores and swellings, as well as scrofula of the lungs and other diseases having their origin in a corrupt condition of the blood.

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is no other medicine "just as good" for the cure of scrofulous diseases.

The W. C. T. U. Give Their Third Entertainment.

The third entertainment of the W. C. T. U., course was given in the Court House Thursday evening. That these entertainments are growing in popularity was fully evinced by the large audience present. The Durno-Emmett combination was the attraction and everyone was highly delighted by their performance. It was good from beginning to end.

Hugh J. Emmett, the musicial humorist, violin soloist and ventriloquist, was a whole show himself. His display of the art of ventriloquiem was the finest ever seen here.

Durno, the mysterious, was voted the equal of Keller and Franciscus. He both mystified and awed his audience by his magic. Especially is this true of the last act in which he changed places with the man inside the trunk.

This combination is certainly all right and if they should ever appear here again "the sign above the door" would be "Standing room only."

We understand when Petrikin Hall opens they are booked for another engagement when full justice will be accorded them in the way of fine stage accommodations.

Nittany Mountain's Lead Mine.

About seven miles northwest of West Milton a "bare spot" can be seen in the summer time. It is a rocky place of about five acres whereon not a living tree or bush is found.

At a point not far from this more than a hundred years ago an old man by the name of Keifer used to get lead ore that was almost pure lead. He would use a mallet and chisel to cut it out. He was told of the whereabouts of this lead by an old Indian, who was a warm friend of Keifer's, and charged him to tell no "pale face." Keifer was true to the charge, not even telling any member of his family where the vein could be found.

Several Kelly township farmers own timber land at or near this point and who knows but what the vein may be one of these tracts of land. Many persons have been hunting the mountain over for the spot but all have been unsuccessful.

A man by the name of Reedy opened a gold digging on the same mountain about 12 years ago and gold quartz was found, but not in sufficient quantities to operate. —Mifflinburg Times.

Nerve Slavery.

It is present-day conditions—heaping burdens of work upon the nervous system that tells the story—premature breaking up of health.

It tells why so many men and women, who so far as age in years is concerned, should be in the prime of health, find themselves letting go of the strength, the power, the vitality they once possessed. It is because that great motor power of the body, nerve force, is impaired. Every organ depends upon its controlling power just as much as the engine depends upon the steam to put it into action. An engine won't go without steam. Neither will the heart, the brain, the liver, the kidneys, the stomach act right without their proper nerve force supply. Let any organ be lacking in this essential and troubles begin—some of them are:

Throbbing, palpitating heart.
Sleepless nights.
Sudden startings.
Morning languor.
Brain fag.
Inability to work or think.
Exhaustion on exertion.
Flagging appetite.
Digestion slow.
Food heavy.
Easily excited, nervous, irritable.
Strength fails.
Loss of flesh and muscular power.
Settled melancholia.
Utter despondency.

A picture, hideous, but easily changed to one of brightness by use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills. They build up the nerves and supply nerve force.

The above is the genuine package of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills, are sold by dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Company, Buffalo, N. Y. Price 50 cents.

VIRTUES IN APPLES.

They Are Good For the System, Especially the Stomach.

Not alone are apples pleasing to the palate of the average mortal, but they possess medical properties of great value to mankind. German analysts say that the fruit contains a larger percentage of phosphorus than any other fruit or vegetable. This phosphorus is admirably adapted for renewing the essential nervous matter, lethicin, of the brain and spinal cord. It is perhaps for the same reason, rudely understood, the old Scandinavian traditions represent the apple as the food of gods, who, when they felt themselves to be growing old and infirm, resorted to this fruit for renewing their powers of mind and body. Also, the acids of the apple are of signal use for men of sedentary habits, whose livers are sluggish in action, those acids serving to eliminate from the body noxious matters which, if retained, would make the brain heavy and dull or bring about jaundice or skin eruptions and other allied troubles.

Some such an experiment must have led to our custom of taking apple sauce with roast pork, rich goose and like dishes. The malic acid of ripe apples, either raw or cooked, will neutralize any excess of chalky matter engendered by eating too much meat.

It is also a fact that such fresh fruits as the apple, the pear and the plum, when taken ripe and without sugar, diminish acidity in the stomach rather than provoke it. Their vegetable salts and juices are converted into alkaline carbonates, which tend to counteract acidity.

A good, ripe, raw apple is one of the easiest of vegetable substances for the stomach to deal with, the whole process of its digestion being completed in eighty-five minutes. Gefraud found that the "pulpe of roasted apples mixed in a wine quart of faire water and labored together until it comes to be as apples and ale—which we call lambswool—never faileth in certain diseases of the raines, which myself had often proved and gained thereby both crownes and credit." "The paring of an apple, cut somewhat thick, and the inside whereof is laid to hot, burning or running eyes at night, when the party goes to bed, and is tied or bound to the same, doth help the trouble very speedily and contrary to exception—an excellent secret."

A poultice made of rotten apples is of very common use in Lincolnshire for the cure of weak or rheumatic eyes. Likewise in the Hotel des Invalides at Paris an apple poultice is used commonly for inflamed eyes, the apple being roasted and its pulp applied over the eyes without any intervening substance.—New York Herald.

Salvation Army Dinner Brings Good Cheer to Many—The Logan Smoker a Great Success.

DEATH LENDS A SAD SIDE TO STORY

Christmas day 1901 has passed away and left behind it many bright and also some sad memories. For intermingled with the happiness are several deaths which left vacant chairs in a number of homes. The day in Bellefonte passed off very quietly and although the weather was unpleasant there was plenty of good cheer. The church services were all well attended and the programs were carried out as announced in Tuesday's issue of this paper.

THE SALVATION ARMY DINNER

Nobody went in want of a good Christmas dinner Wednesday for if they did it was their own fault. In addition to the many charitable citizens of the town who gave to the poor, the Salvation Army gave a splendid dinner to about one hundred and twenty-five poor people in the hall on the 2nd floor of the Centre County Bank building. And such a dinner as it was. All the delicacies of the season were there. Turkey, chicken, roast beef, celery, pickles, turnips, potatoes, mince pie, fruit, cake, nuts, hot coffee etc., made up the bill of fare. Three long tables fairly loaded down with good things.

The dinner was in charge of Ensign McEntire who was assisted by Lieut. Stiles, Harshberger and a score of assistants. The guests were assembled in the hall on the third floor and when all was ready, which was at 12:30 they marched down to the dining hall, single file. There was no disorder everything passed off like clock work. Ensign McEntire did not keep them long in waiting but after a short prayer and the singing of the hymn "Beaulah Land" she told them to pitch in which they did with a will. All ages, color, creed and sex were represented at the dinner and it was a sight long to be remembered. The Salvation Army workers and all who contributed to the dinner deserve the highest praise possible. It was certainly a success in every particular.

In addition to those who were fed in the hall baskets were sent out to different families over the town making over two hundred people in all who were fed by the Salvation Army Wednesday.

Child Worth Millions.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs Mary Bird, of Harrisburg, Pa., "yet I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is a sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. The little ones like the taste and remember how often it helped them. Every family should have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure handy. At this season especially it may be needed suddenly. C. M. Parrish.

Chas. W. Tripple Resigns His Position With the Adams.

Several weeks ago Charles W. Tripple, agent for the Adams Express Company at this place, tendered his resignation. The company did not want to lose so good a man but were finally compelled to accept the inevitable and H. S. Gearhart, of Clearfield, was appointed in his place, the change going into effect Friday.

Mr. Tripple has no settled plans for the future but his reason for resigning was the belief that he could better himself elsewhere. He has been in the employ of the Adams Express Company for the past twenty years and has given the utmost satisfaction as there never has been a complaint entered up against him. The business men of Bellefonte were entirely satisfied with him and all are sorry to see him leave the employ of the Express people. His many friends in Bellefonte will wish him unbounded success in whatever he desires to undertake.

Stockholm Impregnable.

There are a lot of picturesque old castles and fortresses on the coast of Sweden in which garrisons are still maintained, but they would not last an hour if attacked by modern guns and projectiles. They are re-enforced, however, by earthworks, with the very best of artillery. Swedish guns rank among the highest, and several Swedish patents in ordnance have been already adopted by the fortification board of the United States. All the harbors are protected by torpedoes, and Stockholm is absolutely impregnable from the sea, being situated upon a fiord or bay that cannot be entered except through passages that are narrow and easily defended.

It is invaluable to people with weak lungs. Having this wonderful medicine no one need dread pneumonia or consumption. Its relief is instant and cure certain." A Little Known Story About One Who Bore Benedict Arnold's Name.

Touching on the treason of Benedict Arnold there is a little known story which had for the scene of its action the four years of the war of secession, says the Chicago Times-Herald. In response to the first call of Abraham Lincoln for troops a young man appeared at a Detroit recruiting office and enlisted. He went to the front and in the course of six months was made a commissioned officer. He was of a retiring disposition, always courteous to his fellow officers and just to his men, but he sought no close friendships. He was known throughout the command as a man whose devotion to duty amounted to a passion. He once sought and secured a change of command in order to have more frequent hand in the heavy fighting. He was wounded three or four times and was so restlessly anxious to get back to duty that the surgeons found him a hard patient.

This soldier rose to the rank of major. At the battle of Lookout Mountain he was desperately wounded. He was in the hospital for some months. Then convalescence came and with convalescence the restive desire to get to the front again. He told the surgeon that he was fully able to report for duty. The surgeon told him that he was not and that he must stay on the sick report for some time longer. Then the major wrote a letter to his colonel in the field and asked him if the obeying of the doctor's orders was compulsory. The colonel, who knew his man, wrote back that it was as much a part of a soldier's duty to obey the surgeon as it was to obey a commanding officer who ordered a charge on a breastworks in the face of shrapnel. This satisfied the major, and he underwent the rest of his confinement in the hospital resignedly if not cheerfully.

Finally the major went back to the front. He was offered at one time a colonelcy. He declined. He fought in every battle of the later Richmond campaign and was in at the end at Appomattox. The major headed his battalion in the great parade of the returning victors up Pennsylvania avenue. Then there came the final mustering out of the troops. Less than a month afterward the colonel of a fighting line regiment received a letter bearing a Toronto postmark. It was from the major. It said in part: "I served all through the war under an assumed name. I trust that I did my full duty. I wish you now to know that I did what I did in order that I might in some little way make atonement for the deed of one of my family. Sir, I am a Canadian by birth, and my name is John Benedict Arnold."

An Excited Fireman.

Some time ago in a suburban town there was a succession of fires. It was before a paid fire department was organized, and the work of subduing the various outbreaks fell to a volunteer force of fire fighters, who took great pride in their work. One night there was a midnight alarm and a great crowd gathered. Upon the arrival of the volunteer force it was discovered that only one lantern was available. The smoke was dense, but very little flame appeared, and the night was very dark.

Finally one cornice of the burning structure broke out in a sheet of flame. As the crowd cheered a man at the nozzle directed the stream toward the lurid light.

"For heaven's sake, man, keep the water off that blaze!" shouted an excited volunteer fighter. "Blame it, don't you see it's the only light we got to put out the fire by?"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Artificial Light.

A recent writer makes the following common sense remarks on the use of artificial light for evening work: It should be made as steady as possible and be so placed that it will not come opposite the eyes, as in this situation it is dazzling and injurious. Ground glass globes should not be used, for, though valuable in an ordinary room where they tend to diffuse the light more equally, they give an indistinct light for work and put a considerable strain upon the eyes. For the same reason ground or ribbed glass should not be employed for the lower portions of windows.

The Anarchist's Christmas

'Twas the night before Christmas,
The anarchist's house
Was dark, and the anar h
Was still as a mouse;
A sheet-iron bombshell
Was fixed up with care,
In hopes that St. Nicholas
Soon would be there.
But St. Nick was crafty,
He knew what would come,
So down the brick chimney
He dropped a large bo ab.
He had told Mrs. Santa
He thought that he must
Give this anarch the joy
Of a great Christmas "bust,"
So this capsule exploded
And blew up the place,
Bringing smiles of good cheer

A. H. Thurnes, a well known coal operator of Buffalo, O., writes, "I have been afflicted with kidney and bladder trouble for years, passing gravel or stones with excruciating pain. I got no relief from medicines until I began taking Foley's Kidney Cure, then the result was surprising. A few doses started the brick dust like fine stones and now I have no pain across my kidneys and I feel like a new man. It has done me a $1000 worth of good." For Sale by C. M. Parrish.

Great Liberality.

One day in November, 1900, I was called upon to conduct the funeral of an aged bachelor, who had three brothers all noted for their stinginess. I drove twelve miles to the church house, conducted a service and then drove one mile to the graveyard. After burial one of the brothers asked me to stop at his home for dinner. On taking my leave he asked me what I charged for my service. I told him I never made any charges, but always left it to the liberality of the friends. After saying that "a preacher who drives twelve miles to a funeral deserves something good" he went and brought two of the largest sweet potatoes I ever saw. As he put them in the buggy he said, "Now, don't you and your wife eat till you make yourselves sick."—Homiletic Review.

THE COMING CUBAN REPUBLIC.

According to present plans, the Cuban republic will soon be ushered into existence. An election took place on Tuesday of this week, December 31, for presidential, vice presidential and senatorial electors, members of the House of Representatives, governors of the provinces and members of the provincial councils. On February 24, 1902, eight weeks hence, the anniversary of the beginning of the rebellion of 1895, which American intervention transformed into a revolution in 1898, these electors will choose a president, vice president and senators. The division of the island into six provinces, made long ago by Spain, is maintained, and constitute electoral districts for the purpose of the canvass, and there will be eighty-seven votes in the electoral college. Palma will probably be chosen president.

From existing indications, therefore, Cuba will begin its independent career within a few months. The date of the withdrawal of the American soldiers has not yet been determined upon, but it will probably be in the approaching April or May, or soon after the new government which will be completed by the elections of Feb. 24 goes into operation. The elections, both on Tuesday of this week and on February 24, will be under the supervision of the United States, but the election officers will be citizens of Cuba, and will live under the government which they will assist in creating. Of course, the Americans will be absolutely impartial in regard to the candidates for president and for all the other offices. Secretary Root refused to postpone the elections although asked to do so by the friends of Maso, one of the presidential aspirants, and in his interest. The Secretary declared then, as other American officials did earlier and on several occasions, that the Americans had no favorites among the aspirants for any of the offices under the Cuban republic, and would not use any influence for or against any persons mentioned in connection with any post.

Direct physical connection between the United States and Cuba, accordingly, seems to be near its end, but the moral connection will continue under the Platt stipulations, which have been made part of Cuba's organic law. Then, too, there is a powerful element among the Cuban populace who want annexation, and they will be strengthened if the government of Cuba makes the mistakes which many of the people of the island believe it will commit. It is well known that ever since the days of Jefferson in the presidency a considerable number of America's statesmen and a powerful ingredient of its people have considered Cuba in the light of an ultimate possession of the United States, and this feeling has been intensified during the past few years. However, the United States has been pledged to give Cuba its independence, and this promise it is carrying out in letter and spirit. Within the next three or four months the Cuban republic will go into practical operation, but the appearance of Cuba, by the consent of her own citizens, as one or two states of the American Union may be relied upon as being one of the eventualities of the near future.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 31st, 1901.

"This is the close of the first year of the Twentieth Century and it seems to me appropriate that we should pause for a moment and look backward," said a member of the cabinet today. "Six years ago Mr. McKinley assumed the responsible duties of the presidency. He was confronted by a sadly depleted Treasury, as a result of Democratic tariff tinkering; the prosperity of the country was waning from similar causes; a condition of affairs prevailed in Cuba which was abhorent to all right thinking people. Without stopping to review the history of those six years look at the situation today."

"The Treasury is bursting with a surplus aggregating $581,000,000 including the gold reserve, of which $221,000,000 is actually in gold coin or bullion. The country is enjoying a prosperity never before equalled. Affairs in Cuba are prosperous and she will soon be a free and independent sister republic. The United States has demonstrated her military prowess to an extent that has commanded the respect of the world and will make the Monroe doctrine easy of maintenance. We are the owners of a fair land in the antipodes which will in time become one of the most prosperous colonies. Civil government in the Philippines is being rapidly extended and with peace will come commercial prosperity such as never could have been hoped for under Spanish rule. Everything bids fair for the construction of the Isthmian canal which will add to the prosperity of our Western states."

"Under these conditions it is folly to talk of politics in Mr. Roosevelt's selection of the members of his cabinet. The credit for what has been accomplished belongs to no one man but to the Republican party to which the people have confided the welfare of the country. Every true Republican realizes that and will lend every aid to the faithful and successful administration of those interests. Mr. Roosevelt is too noble an American, too good a Republican, to be thinking and scheming for the nomination in 1904 as the newspapers represent. He will select for his official advisors those men who are best qualified to assist him and to administer the affairs of their respective departments. You may rest assured that the President's one aim is to give the country the best possible administration, irrespective of his own future, although, of course, the people will recognize the integrity of his intentions and he will be the only possible candidate in 1904."

"All this talk about Senator Hanna's scheming to secure the nomination, and Senator Foraker's doing the same thing, and Governor Shaw's sacrificing his own presidential aspirations in accepting the Treasury portfolio, you can put down as pure nonsense. There is nothing in them but newspaper gossip. Mr. Roosevelt will be the next candidate of the Republican party beyond peradventure and it is safe to predict even at this early day, that he will be elected."

These statements are undoubtedly true, but it is known that had it not been for the Buffalo tragedy Governor Shaw would have stood a fair chance of securing the nomination in 1904. He is a man of exceptional ability and has the happy faculty of making friends wherever he goes He has been in Washington on several occasions during the past few years and all who have met him speak most favorably of him. He has long been a student of finance and has proven himself one of the most capable supporters of sound money in the country. He is not closely affiliated with Wall Street and for that reason it will prove more difficult for his opponents to impugn his acts than was the case with Secretary Gage, who was an able financier, but whose record as the head of the largest banking institution in the West and his consequent acquaintance with New York bankers made it possible for his enemies to insinuate that many of his acts were actuated by his friendliness to the latter. Governor Shaw is expected in Washington in the near future, but he will come only for a conference with the President and will not assume the duties of his new office before the first of February.

The selection of Governor Shaw recalls the statement of Senator Depew at the national convention when he said, in nominating Mr. Roosevelt for the vice presidency "The highest wisdom will be shown by this convention if it selects a Western man with Eastern ideas and an Eastern man with Western ideas." The Eastern man with Western ideas is now president and naturally he turns to the West for a goodly number of his advisors. When Messrs. Shaw and Payne have taken their seats there will be four members from the Central West and Iowa will have not only two Cabinet members but the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Appropriations and the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The rumor that went abroad that Secretary Wilson would resign is without foundation. In his usual prompt manner the President determined to invite Governor Shaw to enter the Cabinet and immediately communicated with him. When Mr. Wilson heard of it he went to the White House and told the President that if the presence of two Iowa men in the Cabinet was going to embarrass the administration he was ready to resign but Mr. Roosevelt assured him that there would be no embarrassment and that he could not spare him as he not only appreciated the value of his services had been to the administration in the past, but would need them more than ever in the future, in view of the prospective irrigation legislation, a subject on which the President and his Secretary of Agriculture are in hearty accord. The rumor that Mr. F. D. Coburn, of Kansas, will be Secretary Wilson's successor is becoming a time worn and battle seared ghost but will doubtless be launched as something new every time Mr. Coburn's friends can find the least excuse for it.

The statement that Secretary Long will resign is again revived and will not down because it is founded on fact. Secretary Long wishes to resign and will do so whenever he concludes that the feeling over the Schley-Sampson controversy has subsided sufficiently to permit of his so doing without it being said that he is either running away from the consequences of his acts or that the President has signified disapproval of them to an extent that has forced his resignation. Speaking of Secretary Long, there have been published certain mean statements to the effect that he has not done his part in the social duties which involve on a Cabinet Minister and that penuriousness was the cause. Mr. Long is a comparatively poor man and although he has not entertained extensively he has doubtless exceeded his salary, and has also suffered a great bereavement, recently.

CURE FOR SMALL-POX.

An Old Recipe That is Said to be an Infallible Cure.

The following remedy for small-pox and scarlet fever is copied from an old scrap book and may prove valuable for both those dreadful diseases: "The following receipe for the cure of small-pox was published in a Kansas paper. The gentleman who handed it in for publication stated that he was in Kansas at the time small-pox was brought in from the Indian country by infected buffalo skins, and the remedy was extensively tested with satisfactory results. We do not ordinarily put much faith in infallible recipes, that at intervals have extensive newspaper currency, but the evidence as to the efficency of this remedy is so direct that it is deserving consideration. There are opportunities now for testing it. Will not some physician experiment with the recipe and give the result of the experience? I herewith append the recipe, which has been used to my knowledge in hundreds of cases. It will prevent or cure the small-pox though the pittings are filling. When Jenner discovered the cow-pox in England the world of science hurled an avalanche of fame upon his head, but when the most scientific school in the world, that of Paris, published the recipe as a panacea for small-pox, it passed unheeded. It is as unfailing as fate, and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by a well person. It will also cure scarlet fever. Here is the recipe as I have used it to cure my children of the scarlet fever. Here it is as I used it to cure small-pox. When learned physicians said the patient must die, I cured: Sulphate of zinc, one grain; foxglove (digitalis), one grain, half teaspoonful of sugar; mix with two tablespoonfuls of water. When thoroughly mixed, add four ounces of water. Take a spoonful every hour. Either disease will disappear in 12 hours. For a child, smaller doses, according to age. If cities would compel their physicians to use this, there would be no use for pest houses. If you value advice and experience, use this for those terrible disease."

Big Tobacco Shipment.

J. S. Billington, of Corning recently complete the shipment of the largest single consignment of tobacco ever shipped from that section. The tobacco went to the American Tobacco company at Richmond, Va. There were 865,000 pounds which required 30 cars containing 78 cases each to transport it. It was all sorted in Corning and took 125 young women six months to do the work. An average of thirteen cents per pound was paid for the raw stock and in all about $150,000 was expended in the purchase of the raw stock. The tobacco all came from what is known in the tobacco trade as the Big Flats district.

Killed a Gray Eagle.

A few days ago a gray eagle hovered about Skunk Hollow, near Rathmel, and finally alighted on the ground. W. B. Johnston saw the big bird and shot, wounding it. When he came to where the eagle was, it was fighting furiously with dogs. A blow on the head with a club killed the bird. It measured seven feet, two inches, from tip to tip of its wings. It was not heavy and evidently came so close to human habitations that its hunger might be appeased.

—On Tuesday, December 24, at 3 p. m., an enjoyable event took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs. George McMonigal, in Bell Hollow, near Hannah, it being the marriage of their daughter, Charlotta, one of Bell Hollow's best young ladies, to Ellis Y. Wighaman, of Tyrone. The marriage took place in the presence of several of their friends. Rev. W. R. Dillon spoke words that made them husband and wife, and they received the hearty congratulations of the friends present. In the dining room the table was groaning under the load. When all had enjoyed themselves hugely they departed for their homes leaving their best wishes behind.

—Bud Perkins, the negro who killed Andrew Hawkins, colored, at Shawsville, on Tuesday, was captured at Clearfield on Wednesday. Perkins; who is regarded as a desperate man, was surrounded by a cordon of police, and only after he saw that resistance was useless did he surrender. Hawkins, according to Perkins' version of the affair, came to the latter's house with the avowed purpose of killing him and carrying off the woman over whom the quarrel orginated.

The Karpathian Shepherd.

From the Contemporary Review.

The Karpathian shepherd is a regular savage—tales innumerable are afloat as to his kinship with the fairies and the mountain winds. Twice a year only, in autumn and in spring, he is to be seen leading his white herd, assisted by a few hounds, who look like wolves and are almost as mysterious as their master. The shepherd spends six summer months in utter solitude on the highest meadows of the Karpathians. He is dressed in a coarse white shirt, long mantle and high cap of thick fur. His hair is raven black and flows loosely on his shoulders. His white skin sandals enable him to tread lightly and without much fatigue, the long, wearisome way that leads from the mountains to the plains, and vice versa. He never accepts the shelter of a hospitable roof, but always sleeps near his herd, however hard the frost or deep the snow. He is seldom heard to speak, and is said to have lost the use of his tongue in his solitary existence. Many legends have grown and flourished about the silent, haughty youth, whose tall figure crosses twice a year the horizon of the Roumanian landscape; he is believed not to belong to the human race; he neither lives nor dies. No maid has ever loved the shepherd, however handsome he may be and however she herself may be inclined to love—a fairy alone can be tempted by his affection, and she runs a dangerous risk, for he is already bethrothed to the fountain whose water springs among the highest and most lonely rocks, and the revengeful goddess punishes all mortals who cross her path or try to take her lover from her. Such are the legends that render the Karpathian shepherd interesting and attractive—he plays a conspicuous part in all the songs of our folklore, while his fate remains wrapped in the soft haze of mystery.

NEW YORK, Dec. 31.—From a reliable source comes the information that ex-Fire Chief Hugh J. Bonner is considering a proposition made by President Roosevelt and the War Department to reorganize on New York lines the fire department in Manila, Philippine Islands.

It is said that such was Mr. Bonner's business in Washington during the week just ended. Mr. Bonner when seen to-day practically admitted that such a plan is in contemplation.

Search for the bodies of the two men—the fireman and brakeman on the ill-fated train, who lost their lives in the accident at Lycoming Creek bridge two weeks ago, has been continued diligently until this time, but without success. It may be continued a few days longer, but it is believed to be a useless undertaking at this time owing to the condition of the river, and it has been stated that the search will be abandoned within a day or two.

Roosevelt Was Surprised.

From the Indianapolis News.

Clarence Kenyon, of this city, recently attracted attention in Washington, D. C., as "a man from Indiana who did not want anything." With Senator Beveridge, a personal friend, he called on the president, to whom he was presented by the senator.

"I just wanted to shake your hand," said Mr. Kenyon to the president. "I am from Indiana, but do not want anything either for myself or for my friends."

"Mr. Kenyon," the president said, "I am truly glad to meet you and I will say that it is refreshing to meet a man who does not come to ask for something."

Then President Roosevelt began to ask questions about the various applications for the Federal circuit judgeship, the call having been made prior to the appointment of a judge.

The usual company of newspaper men were lounging about the reception room when Senator Beveridge and Mr. Kenyon emerged from the president's room.

"Senator, who's your friend?" one of them asked with the familiarity of a Washington correspondent.

"Gentlemen," replied the junior senator, "this is my friend Mr. Kenyon, of Indiana."

"What does he want?" came an inquiry from another part of the room.

"I am glad to say, gentlemen," said the senator, smiling, "he is an applicant for no place, either for himself or his friends."

"Well, for heaven's sake," came an exclamation from a correspondent who had been sitting quietly in a corner of the room. "A man from Indiana who doesn't want anything. Let me see him."

Mysterious Robbery.

WASHINGTON, December 28.—A mysterious robbing of a diamond chain valued at $3,500 of which either the Adams Express company or Shaw & Berry, a local jewelry firm, which shipped it to New York, are probably the victims, occurred some time between Sunday afternoon and Monday forenoon. The jewelry was dispatched from here to Joseph Frankel & Sons, of 68 Nassau street, New York. When delivered there was no evidence that the seal had been tampered with and the package was not opened in New York until Thursday, when the chain was found missing. The stolen gems numbered 200 and were set in a platinum lorgnette chain fifty-four inches long. The package was made up by the local firm under the personal supervision of the proprietors and duly registered. Detectives of the express company as well as detectives here and in New York are working on the case. It is supposed that the package was opened by some one acquainted with its contents, the chain removed and the package then restored to its original appearance.

Mr. Bok to the American Parent.

At intervals during the past few years the editor of The Ladies' Home Journal has attacked the "cramming" and "pushing" systems so prevalent among the schools of this country.

Each editorial given to this subject has brought hundreds of litters, most of them not only acknowledging the wrong but adding, as well, strong and sad proofs to the statements made. These letters were kept. In the January issue of The Journal the editor's page is occupied by brief excerpts from sixty-eight of them. They are "dedicated to the American parent," and classed under three heads: "A Roll for Educators to Ponder Over," "A Roll for Parents to Think Over" and "A Roll Which speaks for Itself." There are no names, dates or localities mentioned. Nothing but the unsought testimony of a few out of the thousands who are suffering the silence of this "sorrowful tribute to modern schooling." Here is one of the sixty-eight:

"Our poor little boy, just previous to his passing away, went into a delirium of fear that he would not get his 'marks.' His dread was something pitiable."

Old Shoes.

The custom of throwing one or more old shoes after the bride and groom when they go to the church or when they start on their wedding tour is so old that the memory of man stretches not back to the beginning. Some believe it is a lingering trace of the custom among savage nations of carrying away the bride by violence. Others think it is a relic of the ancient law of exchange or purchase and that it formally implied the surrender by the parents of all dominion or authority over their daughter. It was a Jewish custom. In Deuteronomy xxv, 5, 10, it is found that the widow refused by the surviving brother asserted her independence by "loosing his shoes," and in the story of Ruth it is told that it was the custom in exchange to deliver a shoe in custom of renunciation. It was the custom in ancient ittimes to place the husband's shoe at the head of the nuptial couch in assertion of his domination and that he assumed the government of the household.

A Century Bell.

The Academy bell rang at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, its birth day, congratulations to all its pupils. The bell was cast in 1802 and is now a century bell, still ringing out in clear tone the message "upward and forward" to christian education.

Onions Prevent Smallpox.

A well known traveling man stated he once attended a national convention of physicians held in New York some years ago, and remembered hearing a celebrated German doctor make the remark that if persons would eat onions several times a week they would never get the smallpox. Since that time he said I have frequently been among small-pox cases and have nursed patients that died with it and never had it myself. But in times when the disease is prevalent I always eat onions several times a week. Fried onions are the best, as they retain their strength and taste best when cooked in that style. This remedy to prevent the loathsome disease is a simple and [illegible] effective one.

[illegible] friend wants to know what a tramp is, and if we ever had it. Bless your soul, we've got it this minute, and have had it bad for years. It is simply being cramped for money, and pretty much all newspaper men are chronically afflicted. The death of a rich uncle is the only positive cure, though the payment of arrearages on subscriptions gives relief. Can't you relieve us a little?—Ex.

THE MOVING PICTURES.

Very Delightful Entertainment Given in the Opera House Monday Night.

Howe's famous moving pictures were seen in the opera house Monday evening under the auspices of Gregg Post, No. 95 G. A. R. There was a large audience present and all were delighted with the exhibition. The Gregg Post cleared an even $100 by the entertainment.

The pictures were all new, having never been seen here before, and were of that high order for which Howe's pictures are famous. The pictures of the Pan-American were unusually interesting and realistic as were also those in connection with President McKinley's visit to Buffalo, the assassination and the funeral obsequies at Buffalo, Washington and Canton. The pictures representing the obsequies were solemn and affecting.

In addition to this there were views from the Philippines, China, thrilling contests in ice yachting, polo, foot ball, magic pictures, such as the inexhaustible wardrobe, the tripple conjurer; then the funny pictures such as the disadvantage of living in a flat, Uncle Josh and Cousin Si at a theatre, besides others. A great ocean liner battling against gigantic waves was also interesting.

This entertainment will be seen here later in the season when the pictures shown will be entirely different.

An Interesting Case Plainly Stated.

I wish to state again and still more distinctly that the Keating Station Chapel, now in construction, is not a sectarian, but a Christian institution. It cannot be otherwise at present. The time may come when it will be connected with some branch of the church. This can be safely left to Him whom the great Apostle says is "Head over all things to the church."

It is not a union church, but plainly a chapel for the public worship of God and "for instruction in righteousness." No Bible school can be opened until the chapel is ready. I cannot say how many there have made a public profession of religion. It can be truly said that most of them never have.

The control of the chapel is safely provided for on strictly Christian grounds. All expenses, so far, are paid without directly asking a penny from anyone, except from Him who has promised to provide for all our needs. With God our Helper we fear no failure.

If any people, of whatever name, for mere sectarian reasons, choose not to encourage, by word or deed, we want not a penny from such a source for this much needed provision.

In the leadership of this undertaking, I should publicly state that I am a loyal member of the Huntingdon Presbytery, fully believing, according to the Gospel of Christ, that if I depend upon my Presbyterianism for salvation, I shall hardly "get there" "into the Kingdom of Heaven."

Endeavoring to do all "in the name of the Lord" every free-will offering given for this object will be faithfully applied and very gratefully acknowledged.

Mr. Walter Whippo of Water street, leading horse-shoer of Bellefonte, says: "I have a good word to say for Doan's Kidney Pills. I was miserable with backache and a lameness across my loins. I knew it was from my kidneys, for I had suffered from it prior to that. Sometimes I could hardly straighten after bending forward which greatly interfered with my work. I learned about Doan's Kidney Pills procured them at F. Potts Green's drug store and began using them. I had taken other medicine and worn plasters but I never had anything act as promptly as Doan's Kidney Pills. I have been quite free from the whole trouble ever since."

LITTLE LEAKS.

What They May Lead to and How They May Be Stopped.

It is possible to lose much by littles. A classic case is that of the royal granary which was depleted of its stores by a succession of "one rat came and took one grain away, and another rat came and took another grain away." So fortunes are dissipated, and reputations are destroyed, and health is ruined and character itself lost—by little extravagances, little indiscretions, little negligences, little obliquities.

Benjamin Franklin was a great economist not alone of money, but of time. He said, "To teach a young man to shave himself is as good as to give him a purse of gold." He had reference to the minutes as well as the dimes it costs to patronize the barber.

Elihu Burritt stopped the leak in his time and taught himself a dozen languages. Gladstone was equally wise, for he read Plato in his carriage between Carleton terrace and the parliament buildings.

A prosperous man ascribed his success in business to his habit of permitting no particle of material to be unproductive. He experimented and elaborated until he found a method of disposing profitably of every atom left over.

There is a man in New York who has in bank a goodly sum of money which he calls his "'tis but fund." When tempted to needless expenditure by the specious plea, "'Tis but a nickel or a quarter or a dollar," he denies himself and drops the amount he would have spent into a portable bank, which is filled with amazing rapidity. That is one way to stop a leak.

More serious than any prudential matter are the little leaks in life by which vital energy is squandered and moral force is diminished, imperceptibly it may be, through what we sometimes regard as inconsequential acts. Lack of order in our methods of labor, indifference to the "minor morals" of hygiene and the "major morals" of honesty and truth, the practical repudiation of personal responsibility, the neglect of duties which arise from our ethical and religious nature—these are the leaks which we must stop or be bankrupt in the world's eyes and in God's.—Saturday Evening Post.

A LESSON IN CHESS.

Why Willie's Papa Ended It Almost Before It Was Begun.

Paterfamilias, with a laudable desire to keep Willie at home at night, offered to teach him to play chess. The boy was delighted, and the game began.

"Put the little ones, pawns, all along the front and the big ones behind, as I show you."

"I think that is cowardly. The big ones ought to be in front. Ma says"—

"Oh, but that is the rule. Now, see—no; put that rook in the corner."

"Rook! What's a rook?"

"It is a kind of bird."

"Well, that ain't a bird. It looks like a castle."

"Call it a castle, then—and put the knight next"—

"Why is that called a knight? It looks like a horse's head."

"And then the bishop," went on paterfamilias, ignoring the question; "so, and then"—

"Why is the bishop's head split in two, pop?"

"Oh, that is his hat—a cardinal's hat."

"But I thought he was a bishop!"

"A cardinal is also a bishop. Now don't talk so much, Willie. Then you put the king and queen"—

"The queen is bigger than the king, pop!"

"Well, so she is. Who said she wasn't?" said paterfamilias, with a trace of impatience in his tone. "And then another bishop; so."

"Why are there two bishops, pop?"

"Because the rules say so. Now, I shall move first."

"What, after all that trouble, are you going to move them again?"

"Say, Willie, I believe my head is aching. I shall show you the rest some other time," said paterfamilias as he swept the men into the box.—New York Times.

How to Teach a Pet to Ride a Ball.

Many readers have doubtless seen bears standing on a rolling ball and maintaining their balance perfectly while rolling it about the arena. I have a bear who delights to do the trick. He can scarcely wait for his time to come to perform. He was taught, as they are all taught, by joggling his pedestal while he tried to keep from being jostled off. Gradually the pedestal was substituted for a ball with many flat places on it, and this was followed by a perfect sphere. He has been performing two years now, and I have never known him to slip and fall off.—Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

Both Sides.

Johnnie—What does it mean by "seeing the humorous and the serious side of things?"

Father—Well, my son, take a bit of orange peel, for example. How many sides has it?

Johnnie—Why, two, of course.

Father—Exactly. And when some other man steps on that orange peel he sees the serious side of it and you see the humorous side.—London Tit-Bits.

The cheerful man is one who practices the art of having things as he would have them.—National Magazine.

HEROISM AT A FIRE.

The Result When Neither Girl Would Climb Down First.

Not long ago a hotel was partially burned and was the scene of some sensational escapes as well as of more than one death. A young woman was telling of her experiences on that night, when she and a friend occupied a room on the third floor. They had been talking until a late hour, when they were startled by the cry of "Fire!" "We jumped up," said the girl, "and rushed to the door. Flames filled the corridor. The elevator shaft and the fire escapes were quite cut off from us, and nothing remained for the people on our side but to use the windows. As Kate and I stared out at the red glow in horror one or two people passed the windows, letting themselves down by the ropes. We looked out at them, dazed for a moment, and the crowd below shouted, 'Don't jump!' Then my brain cleared. I am pretty good at climbing, and somehow the idea of my being injured never entered my head. I said to Kate: 'Quick! Take the rope and let yourself down!' Kate turned to me and said quietly, but firmly: 'I am stronger than you. You go first.'

"'I won't,' said I, with insinuating contempt. 'You know I can always take care of myself.'

"'I shan't go first,' said Kate.

"Then we both lost our tempers. 'Kate,' I said, 'your chief fault always was obstinacy.'

"'Oh,' said she in withering scorn, 'and you're not at all obstinate, staying up here to burn!'

"One form after another passed the window. The flames shone brighter than ever. I was furious at Kate and she at me. We shook our fists at each other. The crowd shouted, 'Don't jump!' and I shrieked back at them: 'I'm not going to jump, you idiots! It's Kate's fault!'

"Really, when I think of the names we called each other, standing there with death creeping closer every moment, I blush. The crowd yelled frantically. 'I won't go first!' I shouted at Kate.

"'I won't stir an inch!' she shrieked at me.

"'Then we'll die!' I cried melodramatically.

"'Don't be a fool! Take the rope!' she yelled.

"'No!' I shouted. Just then there was a great shove at the door, and the firemen shouted in the corridor. 'It's all out!' Kate and I fell into each other's arms hysterically. We vowed never to speak of our idiocy, but we have a sense of humor, and so we've both told the story of our heroism."—New York Tribune.

Economical.

A good story is related of an English theatrical manager who, by thrift and hard work, had amassed a fortune.

Previous to the production of one play the stage carpenters had to repair a trap, and the head carpenter went to the manager and informed him that it could not be done in the dark.

"Well, lad, thee won't have t' gas," answered the manager. "Here, tak' this and buy a candle."

And he handed him a halfpenny.

The carpenter pleaded that they wanted two in order to get sufficient light.

"How long will t' job tak' thee?" asked the manager.

"About ten minutes," was the reply.

"Then cut t' candle in two," was the answer. "Thee won't have any more money."

An Emerson Thought.

He who knows that power is in the soul, that he is weak only because he has looked for good out of him and elsewhere and, so perceiving, throws himself unhesitatingly on his thought, instantly rights himself, stands in the erect position, commands his limbs, works miracles, just as a man who stands on his feet is stronger than a man who stands on his head.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

A Prisoner.

"I thought you guaranteed that suit of underwear you sold me not to shrink," said the customer who entered the store and stood in a somewhat cramped attitude.

"I did," replied the merchant. "If it shrinks, bring it back."

"I have brought it back," said the customer in evident embarrassment, "but I got caught out in the rain and can't get it off."—Ohio State Journal.

SARTORIAL VAGARIES OF THE CENTURIES THAT ARE GONE.

Grotesque Styles That Reigned In the Time of Chaucer—Raiment That Rivaled the Rainbow and Men Who Starched Their Beards.

It is a little gratifying to reflect that, however the man of today may compare with his ancestors of bygone centuries in physique and morals, his dress is much more moderate and inexpensive, even if it is less picturesque, than theirs.

It is true that here and there one may find some foolish young man whose taste in dress is as extravagant as that of any "buck" of the days of the Georges. There is, for instance, a son of a well known peer who has the reputation of never wearing a suit twice. He has a wardrobe of waistcoats of all the colors of the rainbow, ranging from a light blue spangled with silver stars to a deep green satin with buttons of eighteen carat gold, each of which is adorned with the painted face of a beautiful woman.

Another wealthy aristocrat is credited with having as many suits and uniforms as there are days in the year and with spending on his tailor's bill a sum which would pay the yearly salary of a minor cabinet minister.

But such men are modestly arrayed compared with the dandies of many a past century. The earl of Northumberland who lived in the latter part of the fourteenth century boasted no fewer than sixty suits of cloth of gold alone, and the bishop of Ely of that time had a change of raiment for every day of the year.

Much later, in Queen Mary's time, the wardrobe of a bishop might have been the envy of Solomon for the variety and costliness of its contents, and even a simple village priest, according to Fuller, wore "a vestment of crimson satin, a vestment of crimson velvet, a stole and fanon set with pearl, gowns faced with taffetas, etc."

In the days of Chaucer fashionable men wore clothes as many colored as Joseph's coat, so that "while one leg would be a blaze of crimson the other would be tricked out in green or blue or yellow, without any regard to harmony or contrast."

Even as late as the middle of the eighteenth century a dandy would deck himself in "a vivid green coat, a waistcoat of scarlet, yellow breeches and blue stockings," and the gentleman of a few years later wore, among similar sartorial vagaries, "a coat of light green, with sleeves too small for the arms and buttons too big for the sleeves; a pair of Manchester fine stuff breeches, without money in their pockets; clouded silk stockings, a club of hair behind larger than the head that carries it, a hat of the size of a sixpence on a block not worth a farthing."

At one fashionable epoch our ancestors, to quote the words of a quaint chronicler, "would weare clothes so tighte to ye skin that it might well be conceived they wore no clothes at all," and at another they would wear them "so voluminous that a single suite might well have afforded rayment for a whole familie, and so stuffed out with feathers that, of a verity, their wearers resembled nothing so much as walking sackes."

At another period it was the grotesque fashion to combine on one person the dress of all the countries of Europe—the hat would be Spanish, the coat French, the trousers Turkish, and so on—so that the wearer was a "walking epitome of the dress of a continent."

At one time shoes would be worn with square toes of such width that a royal proclamation was issued limiting the width to six inches, and these shoes were succeeded by others which came to the finest of points at the toes.

In Henry II.'s time shoes with points two feet long were worn by the fashionables, and in the reign of Henry IV. these points had grown to such an inordinate length that in order to be able to walk at all it was necessary to attach the tips to the knees by chains, which were of gold or silver, while the tops of the shoes were carved with all kinds of fantastic designs.

In the early part of the eighteenth century it was a common thing for a man of fashion to spend several hours a day with his valet, among the many quaint operations being "the starching of the beard and the proper perfuming of garments, the painting of the face and anointing with oils, tinctures, quintessences and pomatums." It is even said that some of the dandies of the time bathed in wine and milk "for the preservation of their complexions and the rejuvenation of their energies."—London Tit-Bits.

Works Like a Charm.

Hanson—Wonder how it is that the Jugginsons get along so harmoniously. They never have any quarrels, apparently.

Burt—The reason is simple enough. Jugginson always lets Mrs. J. have the last word and she never tries to prevent him from having his own way.—Boston Transcript.

Mrs. Wunder—It seems to me that that music teacher is always asking for money.

Mr. Wunder—That's perfectly natural. His scale, you know, begins and ends with "dough."—Baltimore American.

ANIMALS IN A STORM.

They Dislike the Wet Weather and Seek a Place of Safety.

Both wild and tame animals, four footed or with wings, have a deep seated aversion to wet weather. Even water fowl will seek a dry hiding place when it rains.

Did you ever watch the actions of cattle before a big storm? If so, you must have seen them grow more and more uneasy as the clouds gathered. You also saw them run up and down the field, as if seeking to escape some impending danger. Finally, when the storm breaks, they draw close together and with lowered heads present a picture of despair.

Domestic animals when it rains will always keep indoors, or, failing that, they will seek shelter by the barn or under trees or beneath the hedges and thickets—in short, in any convenient place where they may not be entirely exposed to the downpour.

It is the same with fowls. They dislike the rain, which soaks their feathers. They seek sheltered places and creep under wagons or behind boxes and boards. Chickens do not mind getting their feet wet, for they will scratch the ground soon after a shower in search of worms and beetles.

Wild birds do their best to keep out of the rain. Some of them build a roof over their nests; others choose a home under the eaves or under a projecting cliff, where they may be safe from the discomfort that the rain brings.

But most of them are without shelter provided in advance by their own forethought. These take refuge in any place that they happen to find at hand. If you watch them before the storm, you will see them looking for such a place. If the storm comes suddenly, the small and helpless ones seem bewildered, flying from tree to tree and from limb to limb, quite unable to make up their minds exactly where to hide themselves.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

CURE FOR CATARRH.

A Remedy Which an Old Virginian Says Is Infallible.

An old Virginia horse breeder who is visiting in New York claims to have an infallible cure for catarrh. "It seems to me," he said "that 90 per cent of the people of New York city suffer more or less from catarrh. If they will do as I suggest, they can cure themselves in short order.

"A friend of mine who used to live in Yonkers had such a severe case of catarrh that he was compelled to give up his business and go to Colorado. The doctors told him that the high altitude of that state would benefit him. He remained in Colorado nearly a year and then found himself as badly off as when he left Yonkers. After he had made up his mind that nothing could cure him and that he might as well die at home as among strangers he met an old tinker, who gave him the remedy, which cured him in three months.

"Dissolve a little powdered alum in a pint of cider vinegar. Use the solution as a gargle three or four times a day. It won't do any harm if you swallow some of it. Two or three times a day, but particularly just before going to bed, dip a chicken feather in vaseline and stick the feather up the nostrils. I suppose any contrivance bought at a drug store for the purpose will do just as well as a chicken feather, but the old tinker insisted that there was some medicinal virtue in the feather.

"The gargle clears the throat and the lower portions of the air passages from the nostrils. The vaseline heals the diseased condition of the affected parts. In a week the sufferer will feel better, and if he will keep up the treatment he can be assured that he will be cured."—New York Mail and Express.

Sixkiller's Arm a Deadly Weapon.

"Another man has been killed by a blow of the fist, which suggests the thought that at times the naked fist of a man, given proper impetus by a well developed biceps, is an exceedingly dangerous and destructive instrument," said a man who for many years lived at Vinita, in the Cherokee Nation.

"It recalls a bit of history local to the Indian Territory," he continued. "Not far from the Arkansas line there lived a half breed who went by the name of John Sixkiller. He was a bad man, but not bad in the ordinary southwestern way—that is to say, he was not a 'gun fighter,' although he enjoyed a general mixup immensely, and until the Cherokee council intervened he indulged in many such affrays.

"After three men whom he had 'laid out' had died of their injuries the council (tribal legislature) met and passed an act declaring that 'John Sixkiller's right arm is a deadly weapon' and that 'he is forbidden to use it against an adversary except to protect himself from death or great bodily injury.'"

A Choice of Calves.

The difficulties the early Virginian colonists had with their live stock is curiously illustrated by the fact that in the colony of Massachusetts Bay a red calf was cheaper than a black one, experience having shown that the former was more likely to be attacked by wolves, owing, it was thought, to the wolves mistaking it for a deer.

ERRORS OF HISTORY

FICTIONS THAT FOR CENTURIES HAVE POSED AS FACTS.

Why the Colossus of Rhodes Could Not Have Spanned the Harbor—The Force of Leonidas at Thermopylæ. The William Tell Myth.

There have been woven into history many interesting stories that time and investigation have proved myths, but in spite of the efforts of the iconoclasts these mistakes of history still pass current with many people.

Probably one of the most affecting scenes connected with the making of literature is that described in the oft repeated story of the blind poet Milton dictating "Paradise Lost" to his daughters. Dr. Johnson, however, has been quoted as denying it. He said, furthermore, that Milton never even permitted his daughters to learn to read and write.

A favorite "piece" with western and southern schoolboys on recitation and exhibition days was a set of verses telling of the heroic stand of Leonidas and his brave "300" at Thermopylæ. The Abbe Barthelemy, who asserted that he had inquired minutely into the subject, wrote that, according to Diodorus, Leonidas had 7,000 men under him and that Pausanias gave the number of Leonidas' army as 12,000.

Did Cæsar say to the pilot:

"Why do you fear? You have Cæsar on board."

Many trustworthy historians declare that Cæsar never used the words quoted.

The inside of cigar box covers are sometimes ornamented with a picture of the Colossus of Rhodes, with ships in full sail passing between the outstretched legs of the gigantic statue. These pictures reflect the popular and what for centuries was the historical idea of the Colossus, which was accounted one of the seven wonders of the world. It may be interesting to know that all drawings of the statue are purely imaginary and, what is more, are modern, not ancient, efforts. The Colossus was erected in 305 B. C. The most trustworthy of ancient accounts of it is contained in a manuscript dating about 150 B. C., in which the height of the statue is given as 105 feet. The entrance to the harbor of Rhodes is 350 feet across, so that it was manifestly impossible that the legs of the Colossus should span the entrance to the port or that ships should sail beneath it.

As a matter of fact the Colossus was not built across the harbor, but on an open space of ground near it; but, for all that, it was a wonderful statue.

People whose sympathies are easily aroused have wept over the wrongs of Belisarius, the conqueror of the Vandals, who, many were taught, "begged his bread at the city gates" after having commanded victorious armies and been of much service to the state. The good old general was unquestionably an unfortunate and much abused man, but there is no proof that he begged his living at the city gates or elsewhere. Yet Van Dyke engraved him and David, the great Frenchman, painted him, and tragedies and romances were written around him in the belief that he did sit at the city gates a forlorn and disconsolate object with palm outstretched for alms.

The facts are, a conspiracy against the Emperor Justinian being discovered, two of Belisarius' officers confessed under torture that the old general was in the plot. He was condemned without further hearing, his property sequestrated, and he suffered imprisonment for six months. His innocence being established, Belisarius was released, and he died about a year later. But that he ever was reduced to the extremity of begging is declared to be absolutely untrue.

The schoolbook tale of William Tell shooting an apple from his son's head is also without foundation in fact. Tell's name doesn't even appear in the chronicles of Zurich, and the most ancient writing in which the story is mentioned bears date some 200 years after the event it pretends to describe. The story is a variation of an old Scandinavian saga. A similar bit of "history" is related of William of Cloudsley in England in the twelfth century.

It is denied also that Emperor Charles V. of Spain on his abdication adopted the habit of a monk and occupied himself in the manufacture of clocks. It is declared that he never ceased to be emperor de facto, and he never surrendered control of affairs of state.

Coming down to later times, the people of three different countries claimed three different men as inventors of the steam engine. In America there is a popular belief to this day that Robert Fulton built the first successful engine and steamboat. In England the Marquis of Worcester, who published an account of a steam engine in 1663, has received credit for the invention. In France Solomon de Caus (1615) was regarded as the genius who had given to the world a new motive power. Each of them may have conceived and worked out the idea of a steam engine without the slightest knowledge of what had been done in that direction before their day, but none of them might rightly lay claim to being the first in the field.

On April 17, 1543, Don Blasco de Garay launched a boat of 200 tons burden at Barcelona in the presence of the Emperor Charles V. The boat was propelled by steam and made ten miles an hour. She was called La Sanctissima Trinidada. The emperor gave to Don Blasco a handsome present, but did not regard the invention as practicable, and nothing came of it. From this it would seem that Fulton was centuries behind the times.—New York Mail and Express.

HAVE TO GIVE UP.

ITS ALL OVER WHEN NERVOUS SICK HEADACHE COMES TO YOUNG OR OLD—EVERYTHING STOPS AND NOTHING GOES ON BUT THE NERVOUS SICK HEADACHES.

If anything will engender a disregard for even life itself it is continued or oft repeated attacks of nervous sick headache. You may be able to partially describe it but the English language fails to fully do it justice. Its misery so concentrated, so condensed, so prostrating that all else is enveloped in its meshes.

Mrs. John B. Beck, of No. 115 3rd St., North, Philipsburg, Pa., says: "Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills are just fine. I used to suffer all the time with nervous sick headaches, terrible headaches that weakens one and makes one nervous and trembly. I was told of the Nerve Pills and got a box and the result was remarkable. The medicine stopped the headaches completely. A single box did this for me and I am only too glad to say so."

By calling at Krumrine's Drug Store information can be obtained regarding this great success of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills and how they were first introduced by proof of their merit.

NEWFOUNDLAND TRAGEDY.

A Fisherman's Wild Sail to Procure Medical Aid.

"The lack of physicians is one of the horrors of the isolation in which the Newfoundlanders of this coast live," says Norman Duncan in Ainslee's. "There is none within fifty miles of most harbors; none within reaching distance of many. It is related of a well to do fisherman who was something of a merchant that his wife, whom he fondly loved, lay in agony for many days while an autumn gale raged. No man in the harbor would put off in a skiff to fetch the nearest physician, who lived fifteen miles down the coast, for there was no possibility that he who ventured could survive. On the fourth day the wind moderated. Two men volunteered to accompany Allerton. They set sail in the first hours of a snowstorm, which abated, however, before they reached their destination. Fighting doggedly, they took the boat safely in, after indescribable hardship and through ever present danger. The gale had gone down when they knocked on the physician's door. A heavy sea was running, but the danger of wreck on the return voyage was quickly passing.

"'What's the matter with the woman?' the physician asked.

"He was informed.

"The husband minutely described his wife's agony. Then he offered what amounted almost to half his fortune as a fee.

"'I'll take that,' said the doctor, 'if you fetch her here. Go back and get her, and I'll attend to the case.'

"'In an open boat!' the husband exclaimed. He pointed out that his wife's condition put such an arrangement beyond the bounds of reason.

"'Well, I can't do anything,' said the physician. 'If you bring her over, I'll attend to her.'

"When the husband got back to his home, the child had been born, but the woman died the next day."

PARRY A COMPLIMENT.

Accept One Always, but Never Take It Seriously.

The famous Mme. Recamier said that she always found two words sufficed to make her guests seem welcome. Upon their arrival she exclaimed, "At last!" and when they took their leave she said "Already?" If taken literally, we should deprecate the flattery. Flattery is insincere praise and wrongs him that gives and him that takes. It is sometimes kinder to accept a compliment than to parry it.

One may say "Thank you, it is pleasant to be seen through such kind (or partial) eyes," or perhaps, "It is a comfort to know that friendship is partly blind as well as the mythological boy," or any nonsense that serves to show that one appreciates the spirit that prompted the kind expression, however wide the truth.

The frequent repetition of the name of the person addressed holds a subtle compliment, implying more complete concentration of the speaker's thought upon his or her personality.

De Quincy says: "More is done for the benefit of conversation by the simple magic of good manners than by all varieties of intellectual power."

It is the sympathetic and responsive listeners that call forth the best efforts of a talker. For such are reserved his choicest stories, his finest thoughts.

A ready smile acts as inspiration, and interest shown in the conversation of others stimulates and vivifies their thoughts.

To a good listener the diffident will say what they think, and the verbose will think what they say.

There is nothing more trying than to find that one's conversation is receiving but a divided attention and nothing more rude than for a person to pick up a book or paper and look over it while pretending to listen to what one is saying.—New York Herald.

State College Students Make It Lively For a Newly Married Couple.

A newly married couple who got on the train at Centre Hall Wednesday afternoon received quite a lively send off which they will remember through the balance of their lives. On the train were about seventy-five College students on their way to their homes to spend the Holiday vacation.

Of course the usual rice throwing and other demonstrations attended the getting on board of the bride and groom which naturally attracted the attention of the College boys who are always out for a good time. They immediately gathered around the young couple who were seated in the center of one of the cars and proceeded to make it warm for them. All kinds of fun was poked at them much to their embarrassment. Finally one of the students produced a cornet and played "You Are Up Against the Real Thing Now" and other selections appropriate to the occasion.

Then they organized themselves into a body and one was elected president. He put it to vote whether they should all kiss the bride or not and the motion carried unanimously. The bride however strenuously objected to this part of the program but they informed her that if she did not consent they would throw her husband out the window.

The newly-wed however took everything good naturedly and laughed and pretended to enjoy it and the College boys did not carry out their threats to kiss the bride etc., but when they got to Sunbury they voted the young couple all right, gave the College yell in their honor and sent them on their way rejoicing.

Shot Father by Mistake.

A very sad story comes from Westport Clinton county, Saturday Joseph P. DeHaas, his 14 year old son Roy, and Messrs. Calhoun and Summerson started on a hunting trip up Two Mile run. When about three miles west of Westport the men struck a trail. They placed Roy on guard, while the men started out in different directions.

About an hour later Roy saw an object in the bushes a short distance away. Thinking it was a bear, he up with his gun. Just as he pulled the trigger, the object rose and Roy saw the face of his father. It was too late, however, for Roy to hold the trigger and the father received the entire load in his face.

Roy hastily ran to his father, but found him unconscious. He took off his coat, rolled it up and placed it under his father's head. He stood by him calling to him to induce his parent to speak to him, but he received no response.

The boy then climbed a tree and yelled many times with the view of attracting the attention of the other two men. About three hours after the accident occurred the men heard the boy's cries and came towards him. By the time they reached the spot they found the boy crazed with grief. He gave way in a collapse and for a short time his condition was such; that the men feared that he, too, would die. They finally succeeded in restoring the son and in getting him on his feet.

Messrs. Calhoun and Summerson then picked up the dead body and carried it to the home at Westport.

Mr. DeHaas was 45 years old. He leaves a wife and six children, one of the latter being Mrs. Claire Berry, of Beech Creek. He was also a brother of John and William DeHaas, of Beech Creek, and of Mrs. Boesert, of Mill Hall.—Lock Haven Democrat

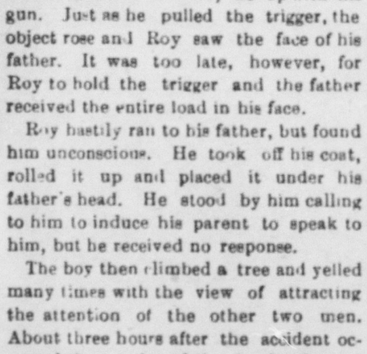
The Eminent Kidney and Bladder Specialist.



The Discoverer of Swamp-Root at Work in His Laboratory.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Then the richness of the blood—the albumen—leaks out and the sufferer has Bright's Disease, the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the new discovery is the true specific for kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. It has cured thousands of apparently hopeless cases, after all other efforts have failed. At druggists in fifty-cent and dollar sizes. A sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling about Swamp-Root and its wonderful cures. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. and mention this paper.

The School Directors.

This being the year for the biennial return to the department of Public Instruction for a basis for the distribution of one-third of the State appropriation to schools of the number of children between six and sixteen years of age, we deem it advisable to call the attention of school directors to the fact. It would be well if at least one member of the board, or someone authorized by them, would call on the county commissioners and ascertain if their district has been properly credited with the number of children to which it is entitled. This is especially necessary in cases of independent districts and those where a portion of one district has been attached to another for school purposes only. Frequent complaints come to the department in regard to incorrect returns having been made by the commissioners; this could be obviated if directors would see to it that the commissioners report their district correctly. These returns are being sent in now, and if this matter is to receive attention at all, it should be looked after at once,—The Pennsylvania School Journal.

"Thought it Meant Death Sure."

Mrs. James McKim, of Dunnville, Ont., says of her almost miraculous cure from heart disease by Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart. "Until I began taking this remedy I despaired of my life. I had heart failure and extreme prostration. One dose gave me quick relief and one bottle cured me. The sufferings of years were dispelled like magic."—2

John S. Furst Receives Important Position.

John S. Furst, of Williamsport, has just received notice of his election as treasurer of the Guaranty Trust and Safe Deposit company, a new company organized at Mt. Carmel, Pa., of which Judge Walters, of Northumberland county, is president. The capital of the company is $125,000, and they will be prepared for business within the next few months. Mr. Furst has decided to accept the position, and will make early preparations for removing permanently to Mt. Carmel.

John S. Furst is a son of Hon. A. O. Furst of this place.

A Woman Burned to Death.

Mrs. Isaac Lines, aged 57 years, was burned to death at her home in DuBois on Tuesday. Her husband had left the house only a few minutes when he was informed his residence was burning. Firemen soon extinguished the flames and on searching for Mrs. Lines found her charred remains in a closet near the kitchen. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is supposed to have been caused by a kerosene lamp, broken pieces of which were found near the body. Mrs. Lines had lived in DuBois many years and was well known in church and Grand Army societies.

Abandoned His Petticoats to Wed.

AUGUSTA, Me., Dec. 24.—Because he fell in love and wanted to have his sweetheart for a wife, "Miss Maggie" Cole cast off yesterday the petticoats he had worn for 15 years while he masqueraded as a woman, put on man's apparel and made known his true name, which is Sylvester Cole.

He says he wore women's clothes to please an eccentric uncle.

RELIGIOUS MATTERS.

New Constitution of the Methodist Episcopal Church Adopted.

WOMEN MAY NOW BE DELEGATES

The Vote Approving the Change Was. Yeas, 8,196; Nays, 2,153—They Can Now Sit in the General Conference.

LAYMEN ALSO GIVEN MORE POWER

CHICAGO, December 27.—Announcement was made here yesterday that the constitution of the Methodist Episcopal church, which was adopted at the last general conference of that denomination held at the Auditorium in May, 1900, and referred to the various conferences throughout the country, has finally been approved by the three-quarters vote required. The vote is as follows: Ayes, 8,196; nays, 2,153.

The element which opposed the new organic law of the church because it provided for the admission of women as delegates to the general conference, made war on the new constitution all along the line, but met with defeat. One hundred and twenty-one annual conferences voted on the question, a total of 10,709 ballots being cast by the delegates.

The principal changes provided for by the new constitution are:

It gives women the right to sit as delegates in the general conference. It gives laymen electoral meetings authority to vote on constitutional questions.

It changes the vote necessary in the general conference to amend the constitution from three-fourths to two-thirds.

PITTSBURG, December 27.—The Presbyterian creed revision committee has issued the following statement through its secretary, Rev. Dr. William Henry Roberts:

"For the information of the church I am authorized to say that the committee on credal revision met at Washington, D. C., on December 4 and remained in session until December 14. The work accomplished at the meeting consists of a "brief statement of the reformed faith" in untechnical terms, and also a declaratory statement. The statement of the reformed faith is contained in sixteen articles and the declaratory statement covers chapter iii, chapter x, section 3, chapter xxv, section 6, of the Confession of Faith of specified in the assembly's instructions to the committee, and also additional statements as to the "Gospel" and the "Holy Spirit."

The work thus far is altogether tentative, is not for publication and is to be considered at another meeting of the committee to be held in Philadelphia, February 5, 1902.

The committee also appointed a sub committee of five, consisting of F. W. C. Humphrey, Drs. McKibbin, Fisher, Nicolls and Moffat, to prepare a tentative revision of the Confession of Faith on the several points contained in the instructions of the committee above named, the same to be considered at the February meeting, along with the declaratory statement."

It is generally understood by the Presbyterian ministers in this city that the plan of the committee is to report the declaratory statement to the next General Assembly and side track the revision movement until the Assembly of 1903. The new creed men on the committee are aggressive and believe that the plan of campaign will best promote their desires and give relief at once to the church.

Guarding Against Smallpox.

The Middleburg Post of Dec. 19 says: "The board of health met Saturday evening and decided not to allow Mr. Updegrove to bring the mail from McKees to Middleburg. I. H. Updegrove has the contract to bring the mail and he became sick with smallpox, and his brother, out of the same family, was carrying the mail. This was considered dangerous and an edict was issued in accordance with the above. The present mail carrier is not allowed to use the same wagon, robes, nor the same mail bag. Another edict was issued in order to avoid the spread of diphtheria.

Don't Live Together.

Constipation and health never go together. DeWitt's Little Early Risers promote easy action of the bowels without distress. "I have been troubled with costiveness nine years," says J. O. Greene, Depauw, Ind. "I have tried many remedies but Little Early Risers give best results. C. M. Parrish.

"FRUIT OF THE LOOM."

Men and women of taste and judgment go into ecstacies over the wonderful patterns, textures and colors which are "the fruit of the loom." But there is one fruit of the loom they rarely consider, and that is the frail and faded woman, old before her time, because necessity compels her to work under conditions, which send her more favored sister to bed and the doctor's care.

The diseases which weaken and torment women, may in almost all cases be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"I had female trouble for eight years," writes Mrs. L. J. Dennis, of 818 East College Street, Jacksonville, Ills. "Words cannot express what I suffered. I sought relief among the medical profession and found none. Friends urged me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. When I commenced taking this medicine I weighed ninety-five pounds. Now I weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds—more than I ever weighed before. I was so bad I would lie from day to day and long for death to come and relieve my suffering. I had internal inflammation, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pain, and such distress every month, but now I never have a pain—do all my own work and am a strong and healthy woman."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with "Favorite Prescription" whenever a laxative is required.

Tramps on the Cars.

From the Independent.

The box car is often entered by springing the door off its iron way at the side opposite the seal. A party going one way will do this for a party going the opposite direction, and then, when all are in, spring the door back again. Since everything externally is in the best of order, long trips may be made in this manner without disturbance or interruption.

Now and then the prisoner is exposed to danger of starvation. A case of this kind has been related to me—where only the accidental visit of a train hand saved a man from death. The brakeman inspected the intruder's papers, and finding that they showed him to be in good standing in his union, took him out, fed him up, and then replaced him—to finish his journey in peace. The hero of the incident is a printer, who has been leading a settled life now for thirteen or fourteen years. But he says he still feels a longing to be off again whenever spring comes.

A railroad accident, whether by water or fire, is a very serious affair to passengers of this sort. You have doubtless read more than once, as I have, of tramps drowned like rats, or burned or crushed to death while stealing rides in this fashion. Riding the trucks is done in various ways. A locomotive engineer of my acquaintance has shown me the precise spot from which he has taken out two men at one time. It was on the rear truck of the tender. They were resting face downward on the truck beam, with just eleven inches of vertical space for their bodies, by actual measurement.

Pill Sense.

It stands to reason that Dr. Agnew's Little Liver Pills will crowd out of the market many of the nauseous old-timers. A better medicine at less than half the price is all the argument needed to keep the demand what it has been—phenomenal—40 doses 10 cents. They cure sick headache, biliousness, and allay all stomach irritations. 100 pills in 25 cent size. —3

Louder—Gramley.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated Christmas eve at 6 o'clock at the home of Thomas Gramley in Harris township. The contracting parties were Mr. Ross Louder, of Oak Hall, and Mr. Gramley's youngest daughter, Nora. Only the immediate families and a few friends were present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. W. Leisher, of Boalsburg. Miss Elsie Gramley, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mr. Elmer Louder, a brother of the groom, was best man.

On Christmas day at noon a reception and big dinner was served at the Louder homestead at Oak Hall in honor of the newly married couple. They were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents.

Heads Should Never Ache.

Never endure this trouble. Use at once the remedy that stopped it for Mrs. N. A. Webster, of Winnie, Va. She writes, "Dr. King's New Life Pills wholly cured me of sick headaches I had suffered from for two years." Cure headache, constipation, biliousness. 25c at Green's Pharmacy.

Krebs—Tanyer.

M. P. Krebs, a prominent young merchant of Pine Grove Mills, and Miss Maggie Tanyer, daughter of William A. Tanyer of the same place, drove to Bellefonte on Christmas eve and were married in the parlors of the Garman House by Rev. W. P. Shriner D. D.

On their return home they were tendered a big dinner and a serenade by the Calithumpians.

Cider a Preventative.

To prevent small-pox drink cider. This is the advice of Henry M. Dechert, president of the Commonwealth Title Insurance and Trust company, at 313 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. And Mr. Dechert practices what he preaches.

The Trust Company employes eat a club dinner in the building every day and on the menu cider is a staple beverage. It was not added until the small-pox epidemic began and it was then added only to fortify the weak human system by the generous juice of the apple, more potent than that of grape in this case, against the small-pox germ.

—A lady, while in Boor & Hoffman's store last evening said her boy had attended the institute and came home with his head full of new ideas. A woman in blue remarked, "Why don't you try red perciplty and a fine toothed comb, that's what we used on Mike when he came home from the huntin' shanty and we got rid of all of 'em in less than a week."—Clearfield Spirit.

Stop the Blight

It is a sad thing to see fine fruit trees spoiled by the blight. You can always tell them from the rest. They never do well afterwards but stay small and sickly.

It is worse to see a blight strike children. Good health is the natural right of children. But some of them don't get their rights. While the rest grow big and strong one stays small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion can stop that blight. There is no reason why such a child should stay small. Scott's Emulsion is a medicine with lots of strength in it—the kind of strength that makes things grow.

Scott's Emulsion makes children grow, makes them eat, makes them sleep, makes them play. Give the weak child a chance. Scott's Emulsion will make it catch up with the rest.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

January 1, 1902

Amid the dim uncertainties of life one thing is clear; the future is in God's hands. God will do his best with every day of it and God's best is very good. Nothing except one's own folly can spoil Gods kindly plans for him.

We may then, so long as we are faithfully trying to do his will, look forward with perfect confidence to a rich, a fruitful, and a blessed New Year.

O Days that are coming out o' the mist
I am half afraid of you!
What bring you hidden under your cloaks?
Are you many, or are you few?

The days replied from out o' the mist.
"Fear us not! whether many or few,
For servants of your best Friend are we,
And we bear His gifts to you."

THE RECORD OF DEATHS.

Those Who Have Passed to the Great Beyond Since Our Last Issue.

JOHN J. WALSH.

This community received a severe shock Friday, Dec. 20, when the news became general of the death of John J. Walsh, assistant superintendent of the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania. Mr. Walsh had been ailing since Monday, but nothing serious was apprehended until Thursday morning when he took his bed suffering from cramp of the stomach. He gradually grew worse until half past nine Friday morning when he peacefully passed away. Dr. George F. Harris and Dr. George B. Klump were the attending physicians and they give the cause of death as intestinal trouble.

Deceased was born near Syracuse, N. Y. and would have been 46 years old the 10th of next February. He was the son of James and Johanna Walsh. Mr. Walsh was a railroad man all his life. For nineteen years he was in the employ of the Fall Brooke line. Previous to coming to Bellefonte he was train dispatcher and station agent at Jersey Shore. During his stay at Jersey Shore he served in the boro council with credit and ability.

He came to Bellefonte eight years ago to accept the position of train dispatcher for the C. R. R. of Pa., and later became Assistant Superintendent of this road. He proved an excellent official and very popular with railroad men and all who came in contact with him.

Sixteen years ago he was married to Miss Julia Bauer, of Jersey Shore, who survives him, with the following children: Anna Marie, Margaret and Helen DeSales.

He is also survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Walsh, of Watkins, N. Y.; one brother, George, of Corning, N. Y., and two sisters, Mary and Mrs. Daniel Fitzpatrick, of Watkins, N. Y.

There was a large attendance and several beautiful floral tributes were received from his late fellow employes at the Bellefonte Furnace and the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania. He started to return apparently in his usual health. About dusk his family heard the wagon drive up to the gate and as the aged gentleman did not come in they went out to see what was the matter, when they found him sitting propped up in the seat of the wagon with the lines in his hands, but stone dead. Heart disease is believed to have been the cause of death.
